Abstract: In this paper, we study the asymptotic behavior of the spectral density of the sample autocorrelation function of a stationary process. We show that the spectral density of the sample autocorrelation function converges to the spectral density of the process in the L^2 norm. This result is a generalization of the result of Parzen (1969) for stationary processes with a continuous spectrum. We also show that the spectral density of the sample autocorrelation function converges to the spectral density of the process in the L^2 norm if the process is stationary and has a continuous spectrum. This result is a generalization of the result of Parzen (1969) for stationary processes with a continuous spectrum.
