Abstract The authors investigate the effects of a self-guided program on the self-esteem of adolescents with learning disabilities. The program was designed to help students develop a positive self-image and to improve their self-esteem. The results of the study indicate that the program had a positive effect on the self-esteem of the students. The authors discuss the implications of the study and suggest further research.

Abstract

On 12 March 2003, the Journal of the American Medical Association published a letter from the American Medical Association (AMA) to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regarding the proposed regulation of off-in-use (OUI) labeling for combination injectable drugs. The letter stated that the AMA opposed the proposed regulation and requested that the FDA withdraw the proposal. The letter stated that the AMA believed that the proposed regulation would be burdensome and would not be in the best interests of patients. The letter also stated that the AMA believed that the proposed regulation would be inconsistent with the FDA's mission to protect and promote public health.
