M. Freyssenet,K. Shimizu,G. Volpato,2003-04-15 The automobile sector is one of the most archetypal global industries and is seen by many as one of the main drivers behind the homogenisation of world markets due to firms internationalization strategies and the social practices that firms impose This book argues that this is not entirely the case due to the heterogeneity of firms and the diversity of strategies pursued It highlights the diversity and forms of internationalization and the preference for regionalization rather than globalization that has occurred over the past decade This book looks specifically at the American and Asian car industry Plunkett's Engineering & Research Industry Almanac 2008 Jack W. Exclusion Unit s Making the Connections report many findings of which are relevant today There is evidence that accessibility is worsening driven by tight budgets in central and local government Accessibility statistics show travel times to key services steadily increasing over time particularly for access to hospitals The Department for Transport needs to focus more closely on improving accessibility as well as on supporting the economy Existing transport funding could be better coordinated and directed to accessibility focused initiatives which will have a swifter impact on people s well being than large infrastructure projects The social value of transport and accessibility needs to be explicitly considered in policy making and in the planning system and should no longer be seen as a second order criterion The Committee believes it will take time for any improvements to make a noticeable difference Their recommendations focus on improving how government operates rather than funding Central government cannot abdicate its role in coordinating action across departmental silos and helping local authorities and service providers to share best practice Accessibility planning introduced by Making the Connections has had limited success and needs to be re energised
