Carbon Management National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Chemical Sciences and Technology, Chemical Sciences Roundtable, 2001-09-15 Considerable international concerns exist about global climate change and its relationship to the growing use of fossil fuels Carbon dioxide is released by chemical reactions that are employed to extract energy from fuels and any regulatory policy limiting the amount of CO₂ that could be released from sequestered sources or from energy generating reactions will require substantial involvement of the chemical sciences and technology R D community Much of the public debate has been focused on the question of whether global climate change is occurring and if so whether it is anthropogenic but these questions were outside the scope of the workshop which instead focused on the question of how to respond to a possible national policy of carbon management Previous discussion of the latter topic has focused on technological economic and ecological aspects and on earth science challenges but the fundamental science has received little attention This workshop was designed to gather information that could inform the Chemical Sciences Roundtable in its discussions of possible roles that the chemical sciences community might play in identifying and addressing underlying chemical questions

Biological Essentialism Michael Devitt, 2023-01-31 Biological Essentialism addresses three main issues The first concerns the essences natures identities of biological taxa particularly species Kripke and other metaphysicians hold that these essences are at least partly intrinsic underlying probably largely genetic properties This view based largely on intuitions is dismissed by the consensus in the philosophy of biology as being incompatible with Darwinism and reflecting ignorance of biology Biological Essentialism argues that the demands of biological explanation show that the metaphysicians are right The positive view of the consensus is that the essences are wholly relational taxa must have certain histories Biological Essentialism argues that there is indeed an historical component to the essence but this component presupposes an intrinsic component Its second issue concerns the essences of biological individuals Metaphysicians have had much to say about this again on the basis of intuitions Many hold that an individual is essentially a member of its species This has recently been unequivocally rejected by philosophers of biology Biological Essentialism appeals to biological explanation again to argue for essential membership furthermore to argue for the Kripkean view that an organism's essence is partly intrinsic and partly relational a matter of origin Finally the book addresses the lively contemporary issue of whether race is biologically real From the perspective developed earlier the book argues that there are indeed racial kinds in some sense that are in the realm of the biological These kinds also have partly historical and partly intrinsic underlying essences
