Grammar of Knowledge Alexandra Y. Aikhenvald,R. M. W. Dixon,2014-02-28 The Grammar of Knowledge offers both a linguistic and anthropological perspective on the expression of information sources as well as inferences assumptions probability and possibility and gradations of doubt and beliefs in a range of languages The book investigates twelve different languages from families including Tibeto Burman Nakh Dagestani and Austronesian all of which share the property of requiring the source of information to be specified in every sentence In these languages it may not be possible to say merely that the man went fishing Instead the source of evidence for the statement must also be specified usually through the use of evidential markers For example it may be necessary to indicate whether the speaker saw the man go fishing has simply assumed that the man went fishing or was told that he went fishing by a third party Some languages such as Hinuq and Tatar distinguish between first hand and non first hand information sources others such as Ersu mark three distinct types of information directly required inferred or assumed and reported Some require an even greater level of specification Ash ninka Peren from South America has a specific marker to express suspicions or misgivings Like others in the series the book illustrates and examines these aspects of language in different cultural and linguistic settings It will interest linguists of all persuasions as well as linguistically minded anthropologists Creativity and Innovation in Times of Crisis (COVID-19)

Bennett,Linda Darling-Hammond,Aneesha Badrinarayan,2025-05-01 Socioculturally Responsive Assessment assembles the best available thinking from within and outside the educational measurement community about the theoretical foundations and systems level policy implications of formal assessment programs designed to be socioculturally responsive Synthesized from culturally responsive assessment design and practices culturally relevant pedagogy and funds of knowledge universal design for learning the learning sciences and other literatures this emerging concept affirms that students learning and performance is inextricably tied to the social cultural and linguistic contexts in which they live and develop knowledge Across four sections this book provides an argument and initial evidence for impact on students users and assessment quality offers guidance for implementation and examines the potential limitations pitfalls barriers and measurement issues that such programs will inevitably raise Scholars teaching faculty test developers and policymakers will come away with integral foundations new assessment approaches and a greater sense of the potential for positive impact that these assessments may afford Children, Childhood, and the Future Andrea Kleeberg-Niepage, 2020-01-10 Although most of the world's children live in the Global South much of the corpus of scientific knowledge which forms the basis of the current notion of good childhood worldwide is drawn from research on Western middle class children Even cross cultural research often applies the Western model of childhood as the standard to which others must correspond This volume serves to bridge this gap by both bringing up significant features of the development and socialisation of children in African countries and presenting cross cultural procedures which help to discuss and develop differentiated and joint ideas about childhood instead of implementing one sided standards which are disconnected from most children's lives
