

Task 1: Identify the components of the system and describe their functions.

Answer:

- Sensor: Measures the process output and provides feedback to the controller.
- Controller: Compares the measured output with the reference input and generates a control signal.
- Actuator: Converts the control signal into a physical action that affects the process.
- Process: The system being controlled, which takes the actuator's output and produces the final output.

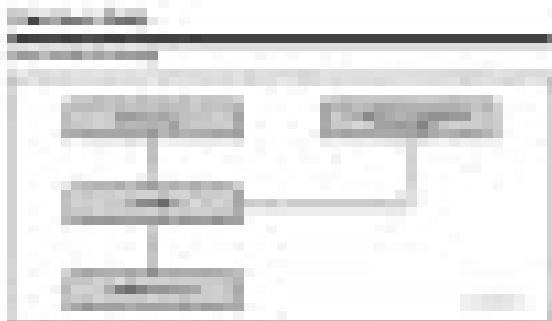

Task 2: Draw a block diagram of the system.

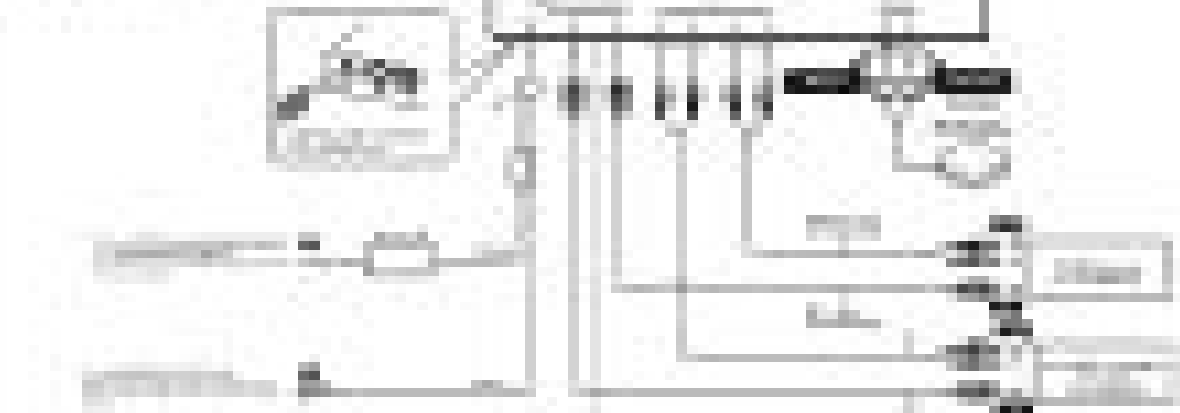

Task 3: Explain the role of the feedback loop.

Answer:

The feedback loop is essential for maintaining the system's output at the desired reference value. It continuously monitors the output and adjusts the control signal to correct any deviations, ensuring stability and accuracy.

Task 4: Analyze the effect of a disturbance on the system output.
