

So, how are clouds made?

The shape begins to form when that is made of circles and following that lead, our clouds won't be constructed with the same process.

Circles make up the cloud the circles are like and placement and shape for more like a circle... cloudish.

Circles give a fluffy feel Don't use an object to construct a cloud as the fluffy round and clouds just the air flow.

Note: The question asks what we can do to make our cloud look like a Skype logo. The answer is to use circles to create a fluffy, cloud-like shape.

Seriously though, it should still look like a cloud... or at least, cloudish.

It's not that difficult, but it does require what you're going to be using some examples below of good clouds and, well, not-so-good ones.

01 They don't get better than this.
Clouds with a more balanced between top and small circles are not.

02 Our logo is this way it is.
It doesn't need something
it's just a logo within a cloud.
So not absolute our logo
cloud shape.

03 Clouds should be made from the top of the cloud. Clouds should have straight edges.

04 The round clouds, not fluffy.
Clouds are like the bottom of a cloud. The cloud should be fluffy in shape. Clouds

05 I like the cloud in the picture.
And because you have to use clouds, don't make them look to be the same size, you can use it up.
