Hawkins, 2018-10-25 Biodiversity of the food system is crucial for food production and loss of biodiversity is a pressing issue This book focuses on biodiversity's crucial role in food systems health and well being and fate of the natural environment It provides practical recommendations on how proper food systems can sustain a healthier planet and protect biodiversity Sections provide a comprehensive understanding of the urgent need for promoting biodiversity promoting food systems that help maintain planetary boundaries that are at risk mimic the natural processes of highly integrated ecosystems and improve human planetary health while providing a wholesome and sufficient food supply      Children's Books in Print R R Bowker Publishing, Bowker, 1999-12      Stressors in the Marine Environment Martin Solan, Nia Whiteley, 2016-03-10 A multitude of direct and indirect human influences have significantly altered the environmental conditions composition and diversity of marine communities. However, understanding and predicting the combined impacts of single and multiple stressors is particularly challenging because observed ecological feedbacks are underpinned by a number of physiological and behavioural responses that reflect stressor type, severity and timing. Furthermore, integration between the traditional domains of physiology and ecology tends to be fragmented and focused towards the effects of a specific stressor or set of circumstances. This novel volume summarises the latest research in the physiological and ecological responses of marine species to a comprehensive range of marine stressors including chemical and noise pollution, ocean acidification, hypoxia, UV radiation, thermal and salinity stress, before providing a perspective on future outcomes for some of the most pressing environmental issues facing society today. Stressors in the Marine Environment synthesises the combined expertise of a range of international researchers providing a truly interdisciplinary and accessible summary of the field. It is essential reading for graduate students as well as professional researchers in environmental physiology, ecology, marine biology, conservation biology and marine resource management. It will also be of particular relevance and use to the regulatory agencies and authorities tasked with managing the marine environment, including social scientists and environmental economists.

Agroforestry for biodiversity and ecosystem services Donald Mlambo, Yashmita Ulman, Pedro Álvarez-Álvarez, Sangram Bhanudas Chavan, 2025-06-18

Agroforestry farming systems with trees has been practised for millennia across the world but its significance as a relevant part of land use has not been formally recognized. As global food demand continues to increase, farmers are increasingly relying on intensive use of existing croplands and land clearing, resulting in environmental degradation. This degradation includes the loss of biodiversity and vital ecosystem services that support human well-being. However, recent discourses suggest that unlocking the potential of agroforestry could offer a solution to this pressing challenge. By harnessing agroforestry, we have the opportunity to support biodiversity in agricultural landscapes, improve agricultural productivity and livelihoods, and provide numerous ecosystem services such as nutrient retention, erosion control, carbon sequestration, pollination, pest control, and fire risk reduction. Agroforestry encompasses a wide spectrum of practices including natural vegetation remnants, Taungya, hedgerows, windbreaks, home gardens, forest farming, riparian buffers, fallow areas, silvopasture, and alley cropping. By exploring these diverse agroforestry systems worldwide, we can better understand the comprehensive range of ecosystem services they offer. One of the greatest challenges faced by humanity in the Anthropocene is to reconcile biodiversity conservation with the demands of economic development, which often involves converting forestland to other land uses. Globally, forest conversion and unsustainable management practices in agricultural landscapes are driving the loss of biodiversity and ecosystem services. Recent research has advanced our understanding of the potential of agroforestry as a solution to environmental degradation, highlighting the need to unlock its potential to achieve both local and global sustainable development goals.

However scientific evidence on the impacts of agroforestry on biodiversity and ecosystem services is not yet universally available To upscale agroforestry practices it is crucial to gather field based evidence that demonstrates the benefits of biodiversity conservation through agroforestry This evidence will support informed decision making by farmers advisory services and policy making bodies Therefore this issue aims to present information and evidence from various regions of the world shedding light on the diverse services provided by agroforestry and how these systems are being utilized in the current era of climate change and sustainable development
