Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was conducted in a laboratory setting. The subjects were 12 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a control group or a training group. The control group performed no exercise, while the training group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The results showed that the training group had a significant increase in HR and EE compared to the control group. The HR increased from 70 to 78 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,800 to 2,200 kcal per day. The control group showed no significant change in HR and EE. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
