Interview

As a new entrant in the competitive magazine market, Teen is looking for ways to stand out from the crowd. It's looking to do that by being different. "We're going to be the only magazine that's not afraid to talk about sex," says editor-in-chief Amy Pelt. "We're going to be the only magazine that's not afraid to talk about drugs." And it's going to be the only magazine that's not afraid to talk about the things that teens are most interested in. "We're going to be the only magazine that's not afraid to talk about the things that teens are most interested in," says Pelt. "We're going to be the only magazine that's not afraid to talk about the things that teens are most interested in."

Abstract

- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Ankara, Turkey. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group participated in a 12-week training program that included aerobic, strength, and flexibility exercises. The control group did not participate in any training program. Physical fitness was measured at the beginning and end of the 12-week period using a series of tests including a 1000m run, a 10m sprint, a 10m shuttle run, a 10m sit and reach, and a 10m standing long jump. The results showed that the experimental group had significantly higher scores than the control group in all five tests at the end of the 12-week period. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

- Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, aged 40 to 50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The control group continued their sedentary lifestyle, while the training group participated in a supervised, aerobic exercise program. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. These findings suggest that a 12-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.
