THE STORM

Ben and Jason are super excited because tonight is the first night their parents are leaving them alone at home to fend for themselves. "You're old enough now boys. It's time for you to learn some responsibility," they had said as they left for dinner. The boys couldn't wait to have the house to themselves. They had big plans to raid the pantry, run around the house, and stay up really late.

The boys were just settling down on the couch with a bag of popcorn when they heard a loud rumbling. It sounded like a jet plane was passing over the house. They looked out the window, just as a large flash of lightning lit up the sky! Without warning, huge drops of rain started pelting down on the windows. The boys jumped back, startled. Large hailstones started smashing onto the tin roof. The sound was deafening!

The boys ran into the middle of the room, shaking with fear. A strong wind started blowing around the house, rattling the windows and shaking the walls. Ben and Jason started to feel like the whole house was going to collapse on top of them. They stood together, trembling, listening to the sound of the storm all around them.

Then suddenly, it was quiet. Not a sound. The storm was over! The boys sat on the couch, too frightened to move as they waited anxiously for their parents to come home. So much for their exciting night home alone.

Making Sense of Narrative Text Michael Toolan,2016-06-03 This book takes the following question as its starting point What are some of the crucial things the reader must do in order to make sense of a literary narrative The book is a study of the texture of narrative fiction using stylistics corpus linguistic principles especially Hoey s work on lexical patterning narratological ideas and cognitive stylistic work by Werth Emmott and others Michael Toolan explores the textual grammatical nature of fictional narratives critically re examining foundational ideas about the role of lexical patterning in narrative texts and also engages the cognitive or psychological processes at play in literary reading The study grows out of the theoretical questions that stylistic analyses of extended fictional texts raise concerns concerning the nature of narrative comprehension and the reader's experience in the course of reading narratives and particularly concerning the role of language in that comprehension and experience. The ideas of situation, repetition and picturing are all central to the book's argument about how readers process story and Toolan also considers the ethical and emotional involvement of the reader developing hypotheses about the text's linguistic characteristics of the most ethically and emotionally involving portions of the stories examined. This book makes an important contribution to the study of narrative text and is in dialogue with recent work in corpus stylistics, cognitive stylistics and literary text and texture.

Narrative of a Second Voyage in Search of a North-West Passage, and of a Residence in the Arctic Regions During the Years 1829, 1830, 1831, 1832, 1833 John Ross, 1835 Style and Rhetoric of Short Narrative Fiction Dan Shen, 2013-11-12 In many fictional narratives the progression of the plot exists in tension with a very different and powerful dynamic that runs at a hidden and deeper level throughout the text. In this volume Dan Shen systematically investigates how stylistic analysis is indispensable for uncovering this covert progression through rhetorical narrative criticism. The book brings to light the covert progressions in works by the American writers Edgar Allan Poe, Stephen Crane and Kate Chopin and British writer Katherine Mansfield.
