Documentary films are often celebrated with aural metaphors they give voice to the voiceless and ask the public to listen But when did listening become synonymous with social justice How exactly do documentaries train audiences to listen when they ask them to right historic wrongs or hold power to account The Documentary Audit challenges the association of listening with accountability and charts oppositional modes of listening otherwise Pooja Rangan develops a framework for understanding how documentary practices have under the mantle of accountability provided a moral cover for listening habits that are used to profile exclude and incarcerate From the British Crown's promotional films to Zoom meeting recordings from disability informed filmmaking in Japan to forensic efforts to expose anti Palestinian violence in Hebron Rangan explores how historical and contemporary practitioners have challenged and refused the lures of normative documentary listening habits in order to listen with an accent listen in crip time and listen like an abolitionist Through an interdisciplinary approach that bridges documentary and sound studies while considering raciolinguistics disability access and legal forensics Rangan demonstrates how the question of listening is central to the study of documentary Far from being a neutral ethic The Documentary Audit shows listening creates the reality it purports to verify with transformative political possibilities Congressional Record
