Stanhope And Byram Images Of America:

Stanhope and Byram Jennifer Jean Miller,2014 Stanhope and Byram have rich industrial histories that were shaped by local natural resources Winding its way through Stanhope the Morris Canal aided the town s iron production while Lake Musconetcong helped sustain production and transport materials through the area Stanhope began as an unincorporated village having been carved out of Byram Township a neighboring community established in 1798 and was officially incorporated as Stanhope Borough in 1904 Byram benefitted from the Morris Canal with its Waterloo Village as a thriving halfway point along the canal Situated between Jersey City and Phillipsburg Waterloo provided a perfect stopover for weary canal workers Despite its prime location and various amenities the village was ultimately abandoned in the 1920s Preservation and restoration efforts and fundraising have been ongoing and the site currently offers tours and programs Stanhope and Byram shares the history of these two close knit bedroom communities that are embraced for their tranquil scenery and inviting atmospheres

Mount Olive Rita L. Hilbert,2001 Mount Olive Township located in northwest Morris County is comprised of two diverse communities Flanders and Budd Lake Flanders is a quiet pastoral village settled in 1750 with the Flanders Methodist Church as its center Budd Lake s most dominant feature is the largest natural lake in New Jersey Both communities were farming mining and milling areas and Budd Lake was also a bustling summer resort area from the mid nineteenth into the twentieth century As the township celebrates its 130th anniversary Mount Olive brings together the history of these two different communities Photographs in this collection include those of the gristmills and farms the neighborhoods surrounding them and the resort areas around the lake The book beautifully portrays an era and a way of life long past Mount Olive begins with the township s earliest days and includes the recollections of longtime residents and a newcomer s delight
