Most education research is undertaken in western developed countries While some research from developing countries does make it into research journals from time to time but these articles only emphasize the rarity of research in developing countries The proposed book is unique in that it will cover education in Papua New Guinea over the millennia Papua New Guinea s multicultural society with relatively recent contact with Europe and the Middle East provides a cameo of the development of education in a country with both a colonial history and a coup less transition to independence Discussion will focus on specific areas of mathematics education that have been impacted by policies research circumstances and other influences with particular emphasis on pressures on education in the last one and half centuries This volume will be one of the few records of this kind in the education research literature as an in depth record and critique of how school mathematics has been grown in Papua New Guinea from the late 1800s and should be a useful addition to graduate programs mathematics education courses history of mathematics as well as the interdisciplinary fields of cross cultural studies scholarship focusing on globalization and post decolonialism linguistics educational administration and policy technology education teacher education and gender studies Public Health Rosemary M. Caron, Joav Merrick, 2014 It is often stated that it takes a village to improve the health of a population This proverb implies that it takes the work of many individuals not necessarily from the same occupation or educational or social background to achieve this goal To improve the health of a population a system comprised of educators community leaders public health and health care practitioners researchers faith based leaders municipal workers and many others working in diverse urban and or rural communities across the globe towards a common goal via evidence based practice policy development education and health literacy initiatives or a combination thereof is required Interprofessional collaborations can be fruitful endeavors with respect to improving health at a population and or individual level However if we examine these interdisciplinary collaborations from a development standpoint not every professional is trained to work with professionals from other disciplines How do we prepare an interprofessional workforce capable of working collaboratively You will find some of the answers in this book
