The Birth of the Museum Tony Bennett, 2013-10-18 In a series of richly detailed case studies from Britain Australia and North America Tony Bennett investigates how nineteenth and twentieth century museums fairs and exhibitions have organized their collections and their visitors Discussing the historical development of museums alongside that of the fair and the international exhibition Bennett sheds new light upon the relationship between modern forms of official and popular culture Using Foucaultian perspectives The Birth of the Museum explores how the public museum should be understood not just as a place of instruction but as a reformatory of manners in which a wide range of regulated social routines and performances take place This invigorating study enriches and challenges the understanding of the museum and places it at the centre of modern relations between culture and government For students of museum cultural and sociology studies this will be an asset to their reading list

The American Baptist Almanac, 1841      Dark Side of the Tune: Popular Music and Violence Professor Bruce Johnson, Professor Martin Cloonan, 2013-01-28 Written against the academically dominant but simplistic romanticization of popular music as a positive force this book focuses on the dark side of the subject It is a pioneering examination of the ways in which popular music has been deployed in association with violence ranging from what appears to be an incidental relationship to one in which music is explicitly applied as an instrument of violence A preliminary overview of the physiological and cognitive foundations of sounding hearing which are distinctive within the sensorium discloses in particular their potential for organic and psychic violence The study then elaborates working definitions of key terms including the vexed idea of the popular for the purposes of this investigation and provides a historical survey of examples of the nexus between music and violence from pre Biblical times to the late nineteenth century The second half of the book concentrates on the modern era marked in this case by the emergence of technologies by which music can be electronically augmented generated and disseminated beginning with the advent of sound recording from the 1870s and proceeding to audio internet and other contemporary audio technologies Johnson and Cloonan argue that these technologies have transformed the potential of music to mediate cultural confrontations from the local to the global particularly through violence The authors present a taxonomy of case histories in the connection between popular music and violence through increasingly intense forms of that relationship culminating in the topical examples of music and torture including those in Bosnia Darfur and by US forces in Iraq and Guant namo Bay This however is not simply a succession of data but an argumentative synthesis Thus the final section debates the implications of this nexus both for popular music studies itself and also in cultural policy and regulation the ethics of citizenship and arguments about human rights
