Shaping the Future of Power Lina Benabdallah, 2020-07-20 China s rise to power is one of the biggest questions in International Relations theory IRT and foreign policy circles Although power has been a core concept of IRT for a long time the faces and mechanisms of power as it relates to Chinese foreign policymaking has changed the contours of that debate The rise of China and other powers across the global political arena sparks a new visibility for different kinds of encounters between states particularly between China and other Global South states These encounters are more visible to IR scholars because of the increasing influence that rising powers have in the international system This book shows that foreign policy encounters between rising powers and Global South states do not necessarily exhibit the same logics behaviors or investment strategies of Euro American hegemony Instead they have distinctive features that require new theoretical frameworks for analysis Shaping the Future of Power probes the types of power mechanisms that build diffuse and project China's power in Africa One must take into account the processes of knowledge production social capital formation and skills transfers that Chinese foreign policy directs toward African states to fully understand China's power building mechanisms The relational power framework requires these elements to capture both the material aspects and ideational people centered aspects to power By examining China's investments in human resource development programs for Africa the book reveals a vital yet undertheorized aspect of China's foreign policy making

Private Security in Africa Doctor Paul Higate, Mats Uta, 2017-06-15 Across Africa growing economic inequality instability and urbanization have led to the rapid spread of private security providers While these PSPs have already had a significant impact on African societies their impact has so far received little in the way of comprehensive analysis Drawing on a wide range of disciplinary approaches and encompassing anthropology sociology and political science Private Security in Africa offers unique insight into the lives and experiences of security providers and those affected by them as well as into the fragile state context which has allowed them to thrive Featuring original empirical research and case studies ranging from private policing in South Africa to the recruitment of Sierra Leoneans for private security work in Iraq the book considers the full implications of PSPs for security and the state not only for Africa but for the world as a whole Britannica Book of the Year 2013 Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., 2013-03-01 The Britannica Book of the Year 2013 provides a valuable viewpoint of the people and events that shaped the year and serves as a great reference source for the latest news on the ever changing populations governments and economies throughout the world It is an accurate and comprehensive reference that you will reach for again and again

China in Africa Suisheng Zhao,2017-10-02 China's expansion and growing influence in Africa is arguably the most remarkable global political and economic development in the 21st century China's foray into Africa started in the late 1990s propelled by its desire to obtain new sources of raw materials and energy for its economic growth as well as new markets for its manufactured goods While China's no political strings attached policy proves attractive to many of African leaders China has been criticized as neo colonialist interested solely in stripping Africa of its mineral wealth without proper environmental or social precautions This book addresses the controversy by exploring the motivations and practices of China's African engagement providing a comprehensive account of the intensified interactions between China and African states The first part examines the debate surrounding whether China has pursued a neo colonialist path in Africa by looking at the perception of China by the locals and the challenges that the intensified relationship has posed for African states The second part analyses China's strategic motivations to see if Beijing has acquired sustaining power and influence in Africa in competition with the West The third part focuses on economic and business practices of Chinese companies in Africa as well as China Africa trade patterns The articles in this book were originally published in special issues of the Journal of Contemporary China

The New Politics of Strategic Resources David Steven,Emily O'Brien,Bruce D. Jones,2014-11-21 Since 2008 energy and food markets those most fundamental to human existence have remained in turmoil Resource scarcity has had a much bigger global impact in recent years than has been predicted with ongoing volatility a sign that the world is only part way through navigating a treacherous transition in the way it uses resources Scarcity and perceptions of scarcity increase political risks while geopolitical turmoil exacerbates shortages and complicates the search for solutions The New Politics of Strategic Resources examines the political dimensions of strategic resource challenges at the domestic and international levels For better or worse energy and food markets are shaped by perceptions of national interest and do not behave as traditional market goods So while markets are an essential part of any response to tighter resource supplies governments also will play a key role David Steven Emily O'Brien Bruce Jones and their colleagues discuss what those roles are and what they should be The architecture for coordinating multilateral responses to these dynamics has fallen short raising questions about the effective international management of these issues Politics impede here too as the major powers must negotiate political and security trade offs to cooperate on the design of more robust international regimes and mechanisms for resource security and the provision of global public goods This timely volume includes chapters on major powers United States India China and key suppliers Russia Saudi Arabia The contributors also address thematic topics such as the interaction between oil and state fragility the changing political dynamics of climate change and the politics of resource subsidies
