School Policies and Practices Affecting Instruction in Mathematics Evelyn K. Hawkins, Frances B. Stancavage, John A. Dossey, 1998 The teaching and learning of mathematics continues to generate tremendous attention both among those who support recent innovations and more recently among those who question the wisdom of the promulgated reforms In order to bring an empirical basis to this debate it is important to gather information on the policies and practices that are actually implemented This report provides one source for such information and is the second in a series that discusses results from the National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP A description of the educational policies and practices that prevailed during this period of sustained increases in mathematics achievement giving particular attention to the relationship between these policies practices and student performance on the NAEP mathematics assessment Information on the status of mathematics education in 1996 is provided and changes that took place from the time of earlier NAEP assessments is also chronicled ASK
