

The book cover features a collage of scientific illustrations. At the top left is a detailed drawing of a horse's head in profile. To the right is a complex, tangled illustration of biological structures, possibly a nest or a microscopic view. In the center, a blue, translucent, three-lobed structure, resembling a developing embryo or a specific organ, is prominently displayed. Below this, on the right, is a circular, segmented structure that looks like a cross-section of a biological specimen. At the bottom left, there's a small inset showing a dark, textured surface. At the bottom right, another inset shows a small, dark fish-like creature. The background is a warm, golden-brown color with a subtle texture.

Dissection for Students of Anatomy Arthur Beeny Appleton, 1929 As its title indicates this is a book for use in a practical comparative anatomy course It is intended for a somewhat unusual class of student and consequently its contents outlook and method of treatment are unlike those of the standard texts in this subject As stated in the preface it is assumed that the student has already done a course in elementary zoology including the usual vertebrate types and has also examined in more detail a mammal Unless this mammal were man a number of comparisons in the book would be missed To obtain full benefit from it the student should obviously have taken the preliminary medical studies including a fair amount of human anatomy This is not meant to imply that the student of advanced zoology cannot get many useful hints and fresh points of view from its pages he undoubtedly can The types treated in a series of regional dissections are the lamprey the dogfish Squalus Necturus the lizard and the dog As it is intended for assistance in dissection information regarding osteology and the details of the central nervous system have been purposely omitted and conversely the muscles are treated somewhat more fully than is customary Atlas and Dissection Guide for Comparative Anatomy Saul Wischnitzer, 2006-02-13 Ideal for

Animal Welfare Information Center Newsletter, 2000

A Course in Vertebrate Zoology Henry Sherring Pratt, 2017-09-12 Excerpt from A Course in Vertebrate Zoology A Guide to the Dissection and Comparative Study of Vertebrate Animals The plan of this course is similar to that of the Invertebrate Zoology published by the author three years ago Its principal aim is to furnish a guide to the dissection of types of the most important groups of vertebrates The directions are practical in character and are designed to be in sufficient detail to enable the student to carry on his work intelligently and profitably and with the least possible waste of time and material Vertebrates are large animals with complex systems of organs and it is impossible for a young student to dissect them in the best manner unless he receives full instructions at every important step To give such instructions is the main purpose of this book The course seeks also to keep the morphological relations of the various organs and systems of organs constantly before the mind and to make the study a comparative one Each of the dissections is complete in itself and is not dependent upon any of the others The teacher may thus assign to his class such of the dissections as he wishes and in the order he wishes The directions do not contain exhaustive descriptions of the animals dissected the completeness of the description in each case being made dependent upon the pedagogical ends aimed at and upon the time ordinarily at the disposal of the student The organs which have been treated in the least detail are the muscles in most cases only the superficial ones being described and they not minutely A teacher will find it an easy matter however to extend the study of the muscles if he wishes The particular order in which the various systems of organs of each animal are studied is the one which experience has shown will accomplish the desired result with the greatest economy of time and material About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
