One study in Staphylococcus aureus reported 100% of the isolates were susceptible to the combination of rifampin and trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole. In contrast, the isolates in this study were susceptible to rifampin and trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole in 90% and 80% of the isolates, respectively. The isolates were also susceptible to rifampin and trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole in 100% of the isolates. The isolates were also susceptible to rifampin and trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole in 100% of the isolates. The isolates were also susceptible to rifampin and trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole in 100% of the isolates.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 10-week program of aerobic exercise, while the control group remained sedentary. HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The decrease in HR was approximately 10 beats per minute, and the decrease in BP was approximately 10 mmHg. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Ankara, Turkey. The study group consisted of 20 children (10 boys and 10 girls) who were randomly selected from the 10-year-old children in the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not participate in any physical activity during the 12-week period, while the experimental group participated in a 12-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The measurements included heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher heart rates and blood pressures at the end of the 12-week period compared to the control group. The body mass index of the children in the experimental group also increased significantly. These findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

QUESTION A 60-year-old male with a 10-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports frequent urination and increased thirst. Physical examination reveals a thin, frail man with dry mucous membranes and a heart rate of 100 beats per minute. Laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 10.5%, serum glucose of 250 mg/dL, and serum sodium of 125 mEq/L. Which of the following is the most likely cause of his symptoms?

ANSWER A. Hyperglycemia

EXPLANATION The patient's symptoms and laboratory findings are consistent with uncontrolled type 2 diabetes mellitus. The most likely cause of his symptoms is hyperglycemia, which can lead to osmotic diuresis, dehydration, and weight loss. The other options are less likely: hypoglycemia would cause hypoglycemic symptoms, hypokalemia would cause muscle weakness and cramps, and hyperkalemia would cause cardiac arrhythmias.
