The Evolution of Economic Development in Africa Francis K. Mbroh, 2021-07-11 Within the theoretical framework of the trade growth and structural transformation growth nexuses the book examines the evolution of African goods and service trade in terms of value and share of global commerce relative to other regions during the period 1948-2017. It also identifies and discusses discernible changes in the composition and structure of African exports and imports between 1995 and 2015 and their implications for economic development in Africa. The study attributes Africa's laggard trade performance during the period primarily to sub-optimal macroeconomic policies and lack of bold export development policies and initiatives among other factors. It also offers an incisive discussion of several inhibitions to the structural transformation of African exports and imports including lack of finance globalization tariff and non-tariff measures in global markets. The discussion of the evolution of African trade during the period 1948-2017 based on statistics and publications of international organizations including the UNCTAD, the World Bank and the African Development Bank among others is the first of its kind in terms of scope and depth of review of African trade. The analyses of cross-border trade during 1948-2017 and their implications for Africa's economic development prospects constitute a useful reference material for academics and students of African and development studies and African and international policymakers.

Geographical Perspectives on International Trade Purva Yadav, 2021-06-29. This book analyzes spatial and temporal patterns of international trade from a geographical perspective. Trade is an important key to understanding the changing dynamics of economic spaces over time. However, studies by geographers are largely confined to case studies, whereas the spatial dimension is often missing from the approach of economists. This study highlights spatial patterns and commodity composition of global trade and the nature of relationship between trade and other economic attributes. A case study of the MERCOSUR trade block examines inter-regional and intra-regional trade flows. The book captures a comprehensive picture of the structure of international exchange by using ample maps and illustrations as supporting features. Many different methods are applied, such as the location quotient to capture concentration and diversification of commodity composition data; reduction techniques such as factor analysis and regression models for relating the economic structures and trade patterns as well as residual mapping among others. This book is a significant contribution to geographical, economical, and social sciences research and very useful to graduate and post-graduate students as well as scientists of all related areas who have interest in exploring the changing dynamics of the global economy via trade flows. It provides a road map to further explore different dimensions of international trade and its role in understanding the transforming global economy. UNCTAD Handbook of Statistics, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, 2001.

Foreign Direct Investment in Central and Eastern Europe Balázs Szent-Iványi, 2016-12-22 This book examines how foreign direct investment FDI inflows to Central and Eastern Europe have changed after the Great Recession It argues that beyond their cyclical effects the economic crisis and the changing competitiveness of Central and Eastern European countries have had structural impacts on FDI in the region FDI has traditionally been viewed as the key driver of national development but the apparent structural shift means that focusing on cheap labour as a competitive advantage is no longer a viable strategy for the countries in the region The authors argue that these countries need to move beyond the narrative of upgrading attracting FDI inflows with increasingly higher value added and focus on ensuring greater value capture instead A potential way for doing this is by developing the conditions in which innovative national companies can emerge thrive and eventually develop into lead firms of global value chains The book provides readers with a highly informative account of the reasons why this shift is necessary as well as diverse perspectives and extensive discussions on the dynamics and structural impacts of FDI in post crisis Central and Eastern Europe
