Petit, Bilal Çiğ, Juan Carlos Mayo, 2025-08-08 Ferroptosis a form of regulated cell death driven by iron dependent lipid peroxidation has emerged as a critical mechanism governing a myriad of pathophysiological conditions Firstly identified in cancer cells the process of ferroptosis has since been implicated in various disease states including neurodegeneration kidney damage cutaneous and cardiovascular diseases The identification and understanding of ferroptosis have revolutionized our perception of cell death and survival unraveling new potential therapeutic targets and strategies Yet despite the progress made crucial gaps in our knowledge persist How exactly does ferroptosis intersect with other types of cell death What are the specific markers and effectors of ferroptosis in different cell types How can we precisely manipulate ferroptosis in cellular models and what anticipations can we build from such experiments regarding possible therapeutics This Research Topic aims to collect the latest advances in our understanding of ferroptosis and seeks to increase our knowledge of the cellular and molecular machinery behind this form of programmed cell death It will probe into the links between ferroptosis and other forms of cell death its regulation and manipulation for potential therapeutic advantage as well as its role in various pathophysiological conditions Unity, 1927 Good Housekeeping, 1921 Multi-omics and Computational Biology in Horticultural Plants: From Genotype to Phenotype, Volume II Yunpeng Cao, Hui Song, Muhammad Abdullah, Xiaoxu Li, Muhammad Aamir Manzoor, 2024-02-13 This Research Topic is part of the article collection series Multi omics and Computational Biology in Horticultural Plants From Genotype to Phenotype Horticultural plants play an important role for humans by providing herbal medicines beverages vegetables fruits and ornamentals High throughput technologies have revolutionised the time scale and power of detecting insights into physiological changes and biological mechanisms in plants All sequencing data and tools have helped us better understand the evolutionary histories of horticultural plants and provide genotype and phenotype resources for molecular studies on economically important traits The integration of these omics technologies e g genomics transcriptomics proteomics metabolomics lipidomics ionomics and redoxomics is currently at the forefront of plant research The genomes of horticultural plants are highly diverse and complex often with a high degree of heterozygosity and polyploidy Novel computational methods need to be developed to take advantage of state of the art genomic technologies As a result the mining of multi omics data and the development of new computational biology approaches for the reliable and efficient analysis of plant traits is necessary Iron Chelation in Plants and Soil Microorganisms Larry Barton, 2012-12-02 Iron Chelation in Plants and Soil Microorganisms provides an introduction to the basic biological processes of plants that require iron and those affected by iron deficiency The book aims to stimulate research in the area of iron metabolism in plants and
