

A photograph of a large, dimly lit underground mine tunnel. The walls and ceiling are made of rough, layered rock. A person is standing in the distance, illuminated by a bright light source, possibly a headlamp or a powerful flashlight, creating a strong glow and casting a long shadow on the floor. The floor appears to be a mix of dirt and loose rock. In the lower-left foreground, there is a small, colorful object, possibly a piece of equipment or a marker.
