Une Question De Justice:

Plato's Introduction to the Question of Justice Devin Stauffer, 2001-01-01 Plato's Introduction to the Question of Justice uncovers the heart of the Platonic analysis of justice by focusing on the crucial opening sections of the Republic. Stauffer argues that the dialectical confrontations with ordinary opinion presented in these sections provide the basis for Plato's view of justice and that they also help to show how Plato's thought remains relevant today, especially as a rival to Kantianism.

Rethinking Transitional Justice for the Twenty-First Century Dustin N. Sharp, 2018-03-01 Transitional justice is the dominant lens through which the world grapples with legacies of mass atrocity, and yet it has rarely reflected the diversity of peace and justice traditions around the world. Hewing to a largely western and legalist script, truth commissions and war crimes tribunals have become the default means of doing justice. Rethinking Transitional Justice for the Twenty-First Century puts the blind spots and assumptions of transitional justice under the microscope and asks whether the field might be reimagined to better suit the diversity and realities of the twenty-first century. At the core of this reimagining is an examination of the broader field of post-conflict peace building and associated critical theory from which both caution and inspiration can be drawn. By using this lens, Dustin N. Sharp shows how we might begin to generate a more cosmopolitan and mosaic theory and imagine more creative and context-sensitive approaches to building peace with justice. The Occupation of Justice

Supreme Court, 1987. Kansas Reports Kansas. Supreme Court, Elliot V. Banks, William Craw Webb, Asa Maxson Fitz Randolph, Gasper Christopher Clemens, Thomas Emmet Dewey, Llewellyn James Graham, Oscar Leopold Moore, Earl Hilton Hatcher, Howard Franklin McCue, 1923. Records and Briefs of the United States Supreme Court, 1832. Practical Reason in Law and Morality Neil MacCormick, 2011-04-28 The concept of practical reason is central to contemporary thought on ethics and the philosophy of law: acting well means acting for good reasons. Explaining this requires several stages: How do reasons relate to actions at all, as incentives and in explanations? What are values, how do they relate to human nature, and how do they enter practical reasoning? How do the concepts of right and wrong fit in, and in what way do they involve questions of mutual trust among human beings? How does our moral freedom, our freedom to form our own moral commitments, relate to our responsibilities to each other? How is this final question transposed into law and legal commitments? This book explores these questions vital to understanding the nature of law and morality. It presents a clear account of practical reason valuable to students of moral philosophy and jurisprudence at undergraduate or postgraduate levels. For more advanced scholars, it also offers a reinterpretation of Kant's views on moral autonomy and Smith's on self-command, marrying Smith's moral sentiments to Kant's categorical imperative in a novel way. The book concludes and underpins the author's Law, State, and Practical Reason series. Taken together, the books offer an overarching theory of the nature of law and legal reason, the role of the State, and the nature of moral reason.

It does so by examining and analysing the conceptual constructs of a victim and challenging the urban bias of victimisation and victimology in criminological study. Indeed far too much criminological scholarship is based on the false assumption that rural areas are relatively crime free and thus free too of victims. Providing international perspectives chapters in this edited collection focus centrally on notions of place and space and constructions of rural victims in a variety of contexts exploring the impact that geographic location has on the type and prevalence of victimisation. The concept of victimisation is often considered in terms of interpersonal relationships between humans neglecting the potent impact of victimisation of non humans and the natural and built environment. Rural Victims of Crime discusses existing notions of victimology in relation to non human subjects broadening conceptualisations of the victim and associated impacts resulting from victimisation. Structured in three parts Rural Victims of Crime conceptualises the rural victim enhances understanding of the realities of rural victimisation and considers both formal and informal responses to rural victimisation. Chapters are accompanied by practical contemporary case studies to connect theory with praxis.
