Postpartum Hemorrhage (PPH)

History of Present Problem:

Brenda Jackson is a 22-year-old African American, G-1, now T-1 P-0 A-0 L-1 who is Group B strep positive and was treated with four doses of penicillin G. She had a vaginal delivery over an intact perineum after 19 hours of labor at 39 weeks gestation. She has been clinically stable and is about to be transferred to the postpartum unit after a two-hour recovery period. Oxytocin 20 units in 1000 mL of Lactated Ringer's is infusing at a fixed rate of 125 mL/hr in a 20 g peripheral IV in her left hand. Type and screen done on admission, Hgb 12.6/Hct 38.

Her last set of vital signs were:

- T: 99.4 F/37.4 C
- P: 95
- R: 18
- BP: 110/67.

She has gotten up to void once and had 50 mL of blood-tinged urine. Her fundus is firm at the umbilicus, and has a small amount of dark red lochia. She is physically exhausted and has been anxious since delivery because her labor and delivery were harder than she ever expected.

Personal/Social History:

Brenda is an advanced nursing student in her final year. She is single and remains in a relationship with her boyfriend, who is also the father of her baby. She lives at home with her parents, who are supportive.

Management of Postpartum Hemorrhage Frances E. Likis, 2015 OBJECTIVES To systematically review evidence addressing the management of postpartum hemorrhage PPH including evidence for the benefits and harms of nonsurgical and surgical treatments interventions for anemia after PPH is resolved and effects of systems level interventions DATA SOURCES We searched the MEDLINE r Embase and Cumulative Index to Nursing and Allied Health Literature CINAHL r databases for articles published in English since 1990 REVIEW METHODS We included comparative studies of nonsurgical and surgical interventions to manage PPH published in English from 1990 to November 2014 and conducted in high resource countries We also included case series addressing harms of interventions and benefits and harms of procedures and surgeries for PPH as these interventions are unlikely to be addressed in randomized studies Two investigators independently screened studies against predetermined inclusion criteria including study design country of conduct and outcomes addressed and independently rated the quality of included studies We extracted data into evidence and summary tables and summarized them qualitatively RESULTS We identified a total of 68 unique studies Sixty one studies addressed effectiveness outcomes none of good quality 23 fair and 38 poor Fifty studies reported harms of interventions for PPH management 11 good quality and 39 poor Few studies addressed pharmacologic or medical management including transfusion for supportive management of ongoing PPH and evidence is insufficient to comment on effects of such interventions The success of uterine sparing techniques such as uterine balloon tamponade embolization uterine compression sutures and uterine and other pelvic artery ligation in controlling bleeding without the need for additional procedures or surgeries ranged from 36 to 98 percent However these data come from a limited number of studies with a small number of participants Harms of interventions were diverse and not well understood Studies suggested an association between recombinant activated factor VIIa and thromboembolic events but sample sizes were small Some studies with longer term followup reported adverse effects on future fertility and menstrual changes in women undergoing embolization Studies also reported need for reoperation after hysterectomy No study out of two addressing such interventions demonstrated benefits associated with transfusion or iron supplementation for anemia after PPH is stabilized Systems level interventions had little effect on reducing the incidence or severity of PPH or the need for transfusion or hysterectomy CONCLUSIONS The literature addressing management of PPH comprises predominantly studies of poor quality Diagnosis of PPH is subjective and management is urgent often involving rapid and simultaneous initiation of interventions Therefore comparing the severity of PPH and trajectory of care across studies is challenging Further research is needed across all interventions for PPH management
