

A romantic couple is shown in a close embrace on a beach. The man, with short brown hair, is shirtless and has his arms around the woman. The woman has long blonde hair and is wearing a white lace-trimmed top. They are both smiling and looking at each other. The background features a soft-focus view of the ocean and a vibrant sunset sky with hues of orange, red, and yellow. The overall mood is intimate and tender.

I could feel the knot in my chest beginning to loosen up, unbinding the ever-present hold it had over my heart, and I knew in that moment that he was it for me. No one had ever managed to break through my solid barriers, but he single-handedly brought my walls crumbling down.

Hell Bound J. D. Blackrose, 2022-05-31 My mother named me Rebecca Naomi Greenblatt. Folks who know me call me Becs. And those who know what I'm capable of call me Summoner. The Kiss on my wrist, a mark I've had since birth, signals my rare ability to call on immortals and negotiate with them on behalf of my clients for information, favors or other services. These powers got me entangled with the demon Valefar and his sidekick, a warlock, not to mention a bevy of fae, a medium who communed with the dead and a conceited library cat. It's complicated, dangerous and exhausting. Recently I found out that my father, a summoner himself and the person who taught me what little I know about my summoning powers, was trapped in Faerie by Titania. I rescued my dad at great cost only for Valefar to steal him away to literal Hell, yes, with a capital H. Now I need to gather the correct magical doodads, wrangle the town's biggest mobster who has his own axe to grind in the underworld and track down my guardian angel lover who's been MIA since I got back from Faerie. Then I'm breaking into Hell to get my father back. And God Himself help anyone who stands in my way. Praise for the Author.
