

Chapter 1

Topics in Analytic Geometry

1.1 Conic Sections

Circles, ellipses, parabolas, and hyperbolas are called conic sections or conics because they can be obtained as intersection of a plane with a double-napped circular cone. If the plane passes through the vertex of the double-napped cone, then the intersection is a point, a pair of intersection lines, or a single line. These are called degenerate conic section.

Definitions of the Conic Sections

Definition 1.1 A parabola is the set of all points in the plane that are equidistant from a fixed line and a fixed point not on the line.

The line is called the directrix of the parabola, and the point is called the focus. A parabola is symmetric about the line that passes through the focus at right angles to the directrix. This line, called the axis or the axis of symmetry of the parabola, intersects the parabola at a point called the vertex.

Definition 1.2 An ellipse is the set of all points in the plane, the sum of whose distances from two fixed points is a given positive constant that is greater than the distance between the fixed points.
