Wace Economics Questions 2014 Essay Questions:

Evolutionary Economics Yuji Aruka, 2024-05-09 This textbook presents a new way to visualize or imagine the evolutionary architecture of economics to judge both its practical outcomes and its ultimate value Evolutionary economics employs an Aristotelian architecture The cognitive value of this imagination H1 must be directly relevant to the evolutionary theory and practice of designing the architecture of the economic system Mainstream economics completely ignores design value in order to concentrate on the ideal Platonic vision of the economy The current system is no longer one that converges on a constant entity because the system is constantly evolving The advent of the digital economy is an indispensable next step and computational power and algorithmic rationality are increasingly dominating the economic system and complicating it In today's society neither fault nor malice matters in the algorithmic or human system There is little room left for the effective working of human reason Correspondingly the meanings of money exchange the market system auctions production consumption and the currency transaction system are poised to change In most cases there will be digital counterparts A smart contract tied together with DLT for example makes it possible to design an economically well behaved peer to peer P2P system which ranges from the micromarket to the international currency transaction system The introduction of this technology and its architectural design may suggest what a truly decentralized future entails This change may also bring about a new understanding of existing social consensus and practice Thus the implementation of these considerations naturally leads to a new style of chapter structuring in this book from the classical analytical approach to exploring computational methods and digital tools in many cases the problems presented in each chapter are combined with discussions of a respective computational method and its practical value Indigenous Question, Land Appropriation, and Development Gautam Pingali, 2022-12-27 This book provides a first hand account of land conflict and power relations in one of the most resource rich states in India Jharkhand Through the eyes of the state corporate and indigenous actors it reveals how conflict over land in Jharkhand is firmly embedded in the ideological foundations of the key actors in the region Based on thorough research on the ground and interviews with state corporate and indigenous actors the book explores a host of themes such as the need and efficacy of state led modernisation programmes the market as the best regulator and ideas of development The volume highlights how land conflicts in Jharkhand will persist until the ideological differences are recognised and welcomed in hopes of making way for collaborative governance This work will be a key intervention in the fields of area studies especially South Asian studies public policy politics and development studies Just Conservation Adrian Martin, 2017-04-21 Loss of biodiversity is one of the great environmental challenges facing humanity but unfortunately efforts to reduce the rate of loss have so far failed At the same time these efforts have too often resulted in unjust social outcomes in which people living in or near to areas designated for conservation lose access to their territories and resources In this book the author argues that our approach to biodiversity conservation needs to be more strongly informed by a concern for and understanding of social justice issues Injustice can be a driver of biodiversity loss and a barrier to efforts at preservation Conversely the pursuit of social justice can be a strong motivation to find solutions to environmental problems The book therefore argues that the pursuit of socially just conservation is not only intrinsically the right thing to do but will also be instrumental in bringing about greater success The argument for a more socially just conservation is initially developed conceptually drawing upon ideas of environmental justice that incorporate concerns for distribution procedure and recognition It is then applied to a range of approaches to conservation including benefit sharing arrangements integrated conservation and development projects and market based approaches such as sustainable timber certification and payments for ecosystem services schemes Case studies are drawn from the author s research in Rwanda Uganda Tanzania Laos Bolivia China and India
