Charles Henry Ramsden, 1868 The Colors of Life Jeffrey M. Russo, 2016-08-05 Beams of bright light stream across the darkened rooftop to reflect upon the calm water cutting through the lingering shadows while a bevy of pearly white swans glides peacefully about Jeffrey M Russo is inspired by the colors of life that have permeated his personal journey for many years In his third collection of poetry he shares lyrical musings that provide a glimpse into his view of the world around him while conveying tales about beauty friendship humanity and much more As he explores thoughts feelings and the characters of the people he has met on his path through life Russo reflects on the love of two women a favorite pen that feels like an old friend an exquisite red maple tree that still holds its dark vibrancy the touch of cold air that surrounds jubilant crowds in Times Square and a spectacular view from a high rise window that looks upon a bustling city below The Colors of Life shares a compilation of diverse poems that reflect on life love nature and mortality The Blue River Valley James Howerton, 2010-03-04 Daddy She pierced him suddenly with her green eyes You know what it is stop pretending Im grown up now tell me what it is Cathy you always said you didn't want to know it made you feel different you didn't want to know And you're not grown up I said a lot of things But now I want to know You're not grown up you're He stared into her burning eyes for a long time having known for sixteen years that this moment would one day come that she would have to know the truth someday Its called Mist he heard his voice saying Its a powerful field something along the lines of magnetism You know that game we used to play on the kitchen table Cathy when you tried to push the positive sides of your magnets together and they repelled each other and one scooted away without even touching the other and how you used to giggle She studied him for a long time But when I reversed one of them they didn't repel they attracted He looked away from her his little girl the miracle Fear throbbed in his eyes as he stared out the window at the Blue River Valley beyond the farmhouse He had always known that they couldn't hide here nor anywhere She would never be safe not anywhere on Earth not anywhere in the universe He had always known that this day would come Mist Cathy said breaking him out of his stare Mist Thats the field that surrounds you Daddy am I human Poems Mary Ware, 1911 Poets on the Edge , 2012-02-01 Poets on the Edge introduces four decades of Israel's most vigorous poetic voices Selected and translated by author Tsipi Keller the collection showcases a generous sampling of work from twenty seven established and emerging poets bringing many to readers of English for the first time Thematically and stylistically innovative the poems chart the evolution of new currents in Hebrew poetry that emerged in the late 1950s and early 1960s and in breaking from traditional structures of line rhyme and meter have become as liberated as any contemporary American verse Writing on politics sexual identity skepticism intellectualism community country love fear and death these poets are daring original and direct and their poems are matched by the freshness and precision of Keller s translations
