ANALYSIS The authors' conclusions are based on a review of the literature and a series of focus group discussions with 12 health professionals. The authors acknowledge the limitations of their study, including the small sample size and the lack of a control group. They conclude that the findings suggest that the use of a structured approach to patient education may be beneficial in improving patient adherence to treatment.

► Background The authors explain the link between a poor nutrition status and the risk of stroke. They note that stroke is caused by a blood clot, atherosclerosis or a tear in the blood vessel that leads to a stroke. The authors suggest a poor diet and lifestyle may lead to stroke. The authors note that a poor diet and lifestyle may lead to stroke.

Abstract

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.
