DIRECTIONS: Answer the questions beneath each reading below.

THE MONGOLS & GENGHIS KHAN:

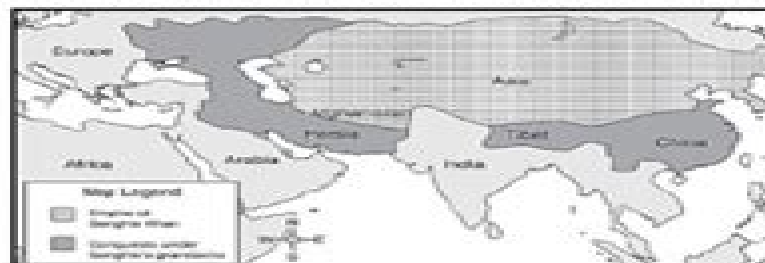

The Mongols were a nomadic, pastoral society with a homeland on the vast Central Asian steppe (dry grassland). Originally a loose collection of tribes, they were united by Chinggis (Genghis) Khan in 1206. As a united force, the Mongols proved almost unstoppable. Technologies like the Central Asia composite bow, which could shoot one-third farther than any of their rivals, and the willingness to adopt the technologies of conquered peoples (like the catapult from the Chinese) were one important element of their success.

The Mongols lived a nomadic lifestyle. Nomadism made the Mongols expert horsemen and incredibly self-sufficient, meaning that they produced everything they needed to survive for themselves. Unlike the armies of sedentary agricultural societies that required long supply lines to feed and equip soldiers, the Mongols brought virtually their entire society with them on military campaign, including families and livestock. This practice ensured that supply lines remained short and allowed armies to travel vast distances for extended periods of time.

A lot of the Mongols success was due to the centralized command structure developed by Genghis Khan. Also, the advanced military tactics that he implemented took advantage of the greater mobility of the Mongol forces. He used various tricks to confuse his enemy. Sometimes, a small Mongol cavalry unit would attack an enemy and then pretend to gallop away in defeat. The enemy would usually chase the retreating army only to find the rest of the Mongol army hiding, ready to slaughter the surprised enemy forces.

Genghis Khan also used cruelty as a weapon. He believed in terrifying his enemies into surrender. If a city refused to open its gates to him, he might kill the entire population when he finally captured the place. Stories about the terror that the Mongols used quickly spread ahead of their armies, which led many towns to surrender without a fight. This success was rapid, by 1227, the year of Genghis Khan's death, the Mongols controlled northern China and most of Central Asia. After his death, his sons continued the conquests. By 1279 the Mongol Empire included Russia, China, the Middle East and Central Asia, as seen on the map to the right.

The Christian doctrine of heaven has been a moral source of enormous power in western culture It has provided a striking account of the ultimate good in life and has for two millennia animated the hope that our lives can be fully meaningful Recently however the doctrine of heaven has lost much of its grip on the western imagination and has become a vague and largely ignored part of the Christian creed Not only have our hopes been redefined as a result but our very identity as human beings has been altered In this book Jerry L Walls argues that the doctrine of heaven is ripe for serious reconsideration He contends not only that the orthodox view of heaven can be defended from objections commonly raised against it but also that heaven is a powerful resource for addressing persistent philosophical problems not the least of which concern the ground of morality and the meaning of life Walls shows how heaven is integrally related to central Christian doctrines particularly those concerning salvation and tackles the difficult problem of why faith in Christ is necessary to save us from our sins In addition heaven is shown to illumine thorny problems of personal identity and to be an essential component of a satisfactory theodicy Walls goes on to examine data from near death experiences from the standpoint of some important recent work in epistemology and argues that they offer positive evidence for heaven He concludes that we profoundly need to recover the hope of heaven in order to recover our very humanity COMLEX II Specialty Review and Study Guide Richard
