

How are TAKS Essays scored?

- The essays use a rubric with a score range that is from 1 to 4.
- To pass the section, a student must earn a 2.
- However, if you fail the essay (scoring a 1), then you fail the whole ELA test!
- There are five areas of writing that the graders consider when scoring the essay:
  - Focus and coherence, organization, development of ideas, voice, and conventions

Reynolds, Robert A. Altmann, Daniel N. Allen, 2021-05-13 This book provides a comprehensive introduction to psychological assessment and covers areas not typically addressed in existing test and measurements texts such as neuropsychological assessment and the use of tests in forensics settings The book introduces the vocabulary of the profession and the most basic mathematics of testing early as being fundamental to understanding the field Numerous examples are drawn from tests that the authors have written or otherwise helped to develop reflecting the authors deep understanding of these tests and their familiarity with problems encountered in test development use and interpretation Following the introduction of the basic areas of psychometrics the book moves to areas of testing that represent various approaches to measuring different psychological constructs memory language executive function etc with emphasis on the complex issue of cultural bias in testing Examples of existing tests are given throughout the book however this book is not designed to prepare students to go out and administer score and interpret specific psychological tests Rather the purpose of this book is to provide the foundational core of knowledge about tests measurement and assessment constructs issues and quantitative tools Explains what constitutes a psychological test how tests are developed how they are best used and how to evaluate their strengths and weaknesses Describes areas of testing that represent different approaches to measuring different psychological constructs Explains applications of psychological testing to issues in the courts Addresses how test authors and publishers design and research tests to address the difficult and demanding issues of cultural differences in test performance and interpretation of test results      Student Successes With Thinking Maps® David N. Hyerle, Larry Alper, 2011-01-28 Use Thinking Maps as a GPS for student success Neuroscientists tell us that the brain organizes information in networks and maps What better way to teach students to express their ideas than with the same method used by the brain Student Successes With Thinking Maps presents eight powerful visual models that boost all learners metacognitive and critical thinking skills Enriched with new research a wealth of examples and cross content applications this novel and effective resource helps students Organize thoughts Examine relationships Enhance reasoning skills Create connections between subjects Engage with content      Objectifying Measures Amanda Walker Johnson, 2009-04-15 Examining the political economy of high stakes educational testing      Students of Color and the Achievement Gap Richard R. Valencia, 2015-03-05 Students of Color and the Achievement Gap is a comprehensive landmark analysis of an incontrovertible racialized reality in U S K 12 public education the relentless achievement gap between low socioeconomic students of color and their economically advantaged White counterparts Award winning author and scholar Richard Valencia provides an authoritative and systemic treatment of the achievement gap focusing on Black and Latino Latina students He examines the societal and educational factors that help to create and maintain the achievement gap by drawing from critical race theory an asset based perspective and a systemic inequality approach By showing how racialized opportunity structures in society and schools ultimately result in racialized patterns of academic achievement in schools Valencia shows how the various indicators of the achievement gap are actually symptoms of the societal and school quality gaps Following each of these concerns Valencia provides a number of reform suggestions that can lead to systemic transformations of K 12 education Students of Color and the Achievement Gap makes a persuasive and well documented case that school success for students of color and the empowerment of their parents can only be fully understood and realized when contextualized within broader political economic and cultural frameworks      Chicano School Failure and Success Richard R. Measurement and Assessment in Education Cecil R. Reynolds, Ronald B. Livingston, Victor L. Willson, 2006 This text employs a somewhat traditional approach to the study of educational tests and measurement so that teachers will understand essential psychometric concepts and be able to apply them in the classroom The principles that guide the development of this text are 1 What essential knowledge and skills do classroom teachers need to conduct student assessments in a professional manner and 2 What does the research on educational assessment tell us This focus has resulted in a uniquely approachable but technically accurate presentation of the material While providing a slightly more technical presentation of the material than more basic texts this text is both approachable and comprehensive The text includes a gentle introduction to the basic mathematics of measurement and expands traditional coverage to include a thorough discussion of performance and portfolio assessments a complete presentation of assessment accommodations for students with disabilities and a practical discussion of professional best practices in educational measurement

State Education Indicators with a Focus on Title I ,2004      Measuring History S. G. Grant,2009-03-01

Measuring History complements the cases presented in Wise Social Studies Practices Yeager Davis 2005 Yeager and Davis highlight the rich and ambitious teaching that can occur in the broad context of state level testing In this book the chapter authors and I bring the particular state history tests more to the fore and examine how teachers are responding to them At the heart of Measuring History are cases of classroom teachers in seven states Florida Kentucky Michigan New York Texas Mississippi and Virginia where new social studies standards and new and generally high stakes state level history tests are prominent In these chapters the authors describe and analyze the state s testing efforts and how those efforts are being interpreted in the context of classroom practice The results both support and challenge prevailing views on the efficacy of testing as a vehicle for educational reform Catherine Horn University of Houston and I lay the groundwork for the case studies through a set of introductory chapters that examine the current environment the research literature and the technical qualities of history tests

Assessing Students in the Margin Michael Russell, Maureen Kavanaugh, 2011-02-01 The importance of student assessment particularly for summative purposes has increased greatly over the past thirty years At the same time emphasis on including all students in assessment programs has also increased Assessment programs whether they are large scale district based or teacher developed have traditionally attempted to assess students using a single instrument administered to students under the same conditions Educators and test developers however are increasingly acknowledging that this practice does not result in valid information inferences and decisions for all students This problem is particularly true for students in the margins whose characteristics and needs differ from what the public thinks of as the general population of students Increasingly educators educational leaders and test developers are seeking strategies techniques policies and guidelines for assessing students for whom standard assessment instruments do not function well Whether used for high stakes decisions or classroom based formative decisions the most critical element of any educational assessment is validity Developing and administering assessment instruments that provide valid measures and allow for valid inferences and decisions for all groups of students presents a major challenge for today s assessment programs Over the past few decades several national policies have sparked research and development efforts that aim to increase test validity for students in the margins This book explores recent developments and efforts in three important areas The first section focuses on strategies for improving test validity through the provision of test accommodations The second section focuses on alternate and modified assessments Federal policies now allow testing programs to develop and administer alternate assessments for students who have not been exposed to grade level content and thus are not expected to demonstrate proficiency on grade level assessments A separate policy allows testing programs to develop modified assessments that will provide more useful information about achievement for a small percentage of students who are exposed to grade level content but for whom the standard form of the grade level test does not provide a valid measure of achievement These policies are complex and can be confusing for educators who are not familiar with their details The chapters in the second section unpack these policies and explore the implications these policies have for test design The third and final section of the book examines how principles of Universal Design can be applied to improve test validity for all students Collectively this volume presents a comprehensive examination of the several issues that present challenges for assessing the achievement of all students While our understanding of how to overcome these challenges continues to evolve the lessons strategies and avenues for future research explored in this book empower educators test developers and testing programs with a deeper understanding of how we can improve assessments for students in the margins

Emotions and English Language Teaching Sarah Benesch, 2017-02-17 Taking a critical approach that considers the role of power and resistance to power in teachers affective lives Sarah Benesch examines the relationship between English language teaching and emotions in postsecondary classrooms The exploration takes into account implicit feeling rules that may drive institutional expectations of teacher performance and affect teachers responses to and decisions about pedagogical matters Based on interviews with postsecondary English language teachers the book analyzes ways in which they negotiate tension theorized as emotion labor between feeling rules and teachers professional training and or experience in particularly challenging areas of teaching high stakes literacy testing responding to student writing plagiarism and attendance Discussion of this rich interview data offers an expanded and nuanced understanding of English language teaching one positing teachers emotion labor as a framework for theorizing emotions critically and as a tool of teacher agency and resistance
