POSTMASTER:

Primary research is a method of gathering data that can be used to answer a question or solve a problem. It is often used in the social sciences, business, and education. There are many different ways to conduct primary research, and the choice of method will depend on the research question and the resources available. Some common methods of primary research include surveys, interviews, focus groups, and experiments. Each method has its own strengths and weaknesses, and it is important to choose the right method for the job.
