House of Commons - Culture, Media and Sport Committee: Nuisance Calls: Volume I - HC 636 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Culture, Media and Sport Committee,2013-12-05 Nuisance calls particularly unwanted marketing calls and text messages are a bane to millions A significant underlying feature giving rise to nuisance calls is the unfair processing of personal data something that is proscribed by the Data Protection Act 1998 The Information Commissioner already has powers to deal with this he should use them far more Where regulation fails technology has a place with a number of useful products available and standard services like caller display can also help Caller display should be a free service and the Committee regrets BT s decision to charging explicitly for caller display Some nuisance callers withhold their numbers or hide behind a false one Nuisance text messages can be simply reported by forwarding them to a dedicated short code number 7726 and a similar facility for nuisance calls to landlines is long overdue and would provide useful intelligence to regulators There should be a single online complaints form Given that many people do not have internet access there should also be a single nuisance calls helpline The legal threshold for the Information Commissioner to take enforcement action under the Privacy and Electronic Communications EC Directive Regulations 2003 must also be lowered A single nuisance calls regulator might have superficial appeal but a single point of contact for customers coupled with more effective coordination between regulators behind the scenes is both more achievable and desirable Above all organisations closer to the source of marketing calls like the Direct Marketing Association

Malware and cyber crime Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee,2012-02-02 Malicious software designed to infect computers to steal bank details and identity information poses a growing threat in the UK as more people use the internet and an increasing proportion of economic activity takes place online The Science and Technology Committee say the Government must do more to help the public understand how to stay safe online It calls for a prolonged awareness raising campaign to increase public understanding of personal online security Eighty per cent of protection against cyber attack is routine IT hygiene yet currently there is no single first point of advice and help for consumers and much of the online information about internet security is often technical or jargon filled Television exposure is crucial to gain the widest possible exposure to the safety message and more should be done to promote and resource the existing Government website Get Safe Online Advice from Get Safe Online should be provided with every device capable of accessing the internet and all Government websites should link to the website and highlight the latest security updates The provision of Government services by the digital by default policy will increasingly require those in receipt of Government benefits and services to access these online The Committee raises concerns that the scheme will be of greater use in protecting the Government against welfare fraud than the individual user against crime The Government should investigate the potential for imposing statutory safety standards if the industry cannot demonstrate that voluntary self regulation can improve security
