

A Frog's Skull

- A frog's skull consists of three main regions: Cranium, Sense Capsules, and Jaws. Moreover, a frog's skull is generally known for having a triangular shape and incomplete ossification.
 - Ossification refers to bone formation – the process of soft tissues becoming hardened.
1. Cranium – The front of a frog's cranium is more developed than the back. It serves to protect the brain.
 2. Sense Capsules – Cartilaginous cavities which contain the sensory organs: eyes, nose, etc.
 3. Jaws – The upper and lower jaws support the border of the mouth.
