Assessment in Technical and Professional Communication Margaret Hundleby, Jo Allen, 2017-07-05 This collection of essays focuses on both how and why assessment serves as a key element in the teaching and practice of technical and professional communication The collection is organized to form a dual approach on the one hand it offers a landscape view of the activities involved in assessment examining how it works at institutional program and classroom levels on the other it surveys the implications of using assessment for formulating maintaining and extending the teaching and practice of technical communication The book offers teachers students scholars and practitioners alike evidence of the increasingly valuable role of assessment in the field as it supports and enriches our thinking and practice No other volume has addressed the demands of and the expectations for assessment in technical communication Consequently the book has two key goals The first is to be as inclusive as is feasible for its size demonstrating the global operation of assessment in the field For this reason descriptions of assessment practice lead to examinations of some key feature of the landscape captured by the term technical communication The second goal is to retain the public and cooperative approach that has characterized technical communication from the beginning To achieve this the book represents a conversation with contributors chosen from among practicing highly active technical communication teachers and scholars and the chapters set up pairs of opening statement and following response The overriding purpose of the volume therefore is to invite the whole community into the conversation about assessment in technical communication

Citizenship and Advocacy in Technical Communication Godwin Y. Agboka, Natalia Matveeva, 2018-06-22 In Citizenship and Advocacy in Technical Communication teachers researchers and practitioners will find a variety of theoretical frameworks empirical studies and teaching approaches to advocacy and citizenship Specifically the collection is organized around three main themes or sections considerations for understanding and defining advocacy and citizenship locally and globally engaging with the local and global community and introducing advocacy in a classroom The collection covers an expansive breadth of issues and topics that speak to the complexities of undertaking advocacy work in TPC including local grant writing activities cosmopolitanism and global transnational rhetoric digital citizenship and social media use strategic and tactical communication and diversity and social justice The contributors themselves representing fifteen academic institutions and occupying various academic ranks offer nuanced definitions frameworks examples and strategies for students scholars practitioners and educators who want to or are already engaged in a variegated range of advocacy work More so they reinforce the inherent humanistic values of our field and discuss effective rhetorical and current technological tools at our disposal Finally they show us how through pedagogical approaches and everyday mundane activities and practices we can advocate either actively or passively

Cross-cultural Communication Thomas Warren, 2017-03-02 Cross Cultural Communication is a collection of essays that examines how practitioners can improve the acceptance of their documentation when communicating to cultures other than their own The essays begin by examining the cross cultural issues relating to quality in documentation From there the essays look at examples of common documents analysing them from several perspectives Specifically the author uses communication theories such as Bernstein's Elaborated and Restricted Code theory and Marwell and Schmidt's Compliance Gaining theory to show how documents used by readers who are not native speakers of English can be written and organized to increase their effectiveness The principal assumption about how practitioners create their documents is that while large organizations can afford to write translate and then localize small to medium size organizations produce many documents that are used directly by people in other cultures often without translating and localizing The advantage the writer gains from these essays is in understanding the strategies and knowing the kinds of strategies to apply in specific situations In addition the essays can serve as a valuable resource for students and teachers alike as they determine ways to understand how cross cultural communication is different and why it makes a difference Not only do students need to be aware of the various strategies they may apply when creating documents for cross cultural settings they also need to see how research can apply theories from different areas in the case of these essays communication and rhetorical theories Another value of the essays is to show the students the role standards play in cross cultural communication standards are written by committees that follow style rules developed by the International Standardization Organization in Geneva Thus both students and practitioners can find valuable cross cultural communication advice in these essays

A Research Primer for Technical Communication George F Hayhoe,Pam Estes Brewer,2020-09-10 This fully revised edition provides a practical introduction to research methods for anyone conducting and critically reading technical communication research The first section discusses the role of research in technical communication and explains in plain language how to conduct and report such research It covers both quantitative and qualitative methods as well as surveys usability studies and literature reviews The second section presents a collection of research articles that serve as exemplars of these major types of research projects each followed by commentary breaking down how it corresponds to the information on that research type In addition to five new chapters of exemplars and commentaries this second edition contains a new chapter on usability studies This book is an essential introduction to research methods for students of technical communication and for industry professionals who need to conduct and engage with research on the job
