Fundamental Considerations in Technology Mediated Language Assessment aims to address issues such as how the forced integration of technology into second language assessment has shaped our understanding of key traditional concepts like validity reliability washback authenticity ethics fairness test security and more Although computer assisted language testing has been around for more than two decades in the context of high stakes proficiency testing much of language testing worldwide has shifted to at home mode and relies heavily on the mediation of digital technology making its widespread application in classroom settings in response to the COVID 19 outbreak unprecedented Integration of technology into language assessment has brought with it countless affordances and at the same time challenges both theoretically and practically One major theoretical consideration requiring attention is the way technology has contributed to a reconceptualization of major assessment concepts constructs There is very limited literature available on the theoretical underpinnings of technology mediated language assessment This book aims to fill this gap This book will appeal to academic specialists practitioners or professionals in the field of language assessment advanced and or graduate students and a range of scholars or professionals in disciplines like educational technology applied linguistics and teaching English to speakers of other languages TESOL

A Guide to Teaching in the Active Learning

Classroom Paul Baepler, J. D. Walker, D. Christopher Brooks, Kem Saichaie, Christina I. Petersen, 2023-07-03 While Active Learning Classrooms or ALCs offer rich new environments for learning they present many new challenges to faculty because among other things they eliminate the room's central focal point and disrupt the conventional seating plan to which faculty and students have become accustomed The importance of learning how to use these classrooms well and to capitalize on their special features is paramount The potential they represent can be realized only when they facilitate improved learning outcomes and engage students in the learning process in a manner different from traditional classrooms and lecture halls This book provides an introduction to ALCs briefly covering their history and then synthesizing the research on these spaces to provide faculty with empirically based practical guidance on how to use these unfamiliar spaces effectively Among the questions this book addresses are How can instructors mitigate the apparent lack of a central focal point in the space What types of learning activities work well in the ALCs and take advantage of the affordances of the room How can teachers address familiar classroom management challenges in these unfamiliar spaces If assessment and rapid feedback are critical in active learning how do they work in a room filled with circular tables and no central focus point How do instructors balance group learning with the needs of the larger class How can students be held accountable when many will necessarily have their backs facing the instructor How can instructors evaluate the effectiveness of their teaching in these spaces This book is intended for faculty preparing to teach in or already working in this new classroom environment for administrators planning to create ALCs or experimenting with provisionally designed rooms and for faculty developers helping teachers transition to using these new spaces Cases on Online Learning Communities and Beyond: Investigations and Applications
