Teaching Chemistry Around the World Björn Risch, 2010 As teachers, we often tend to expect other countries to teach chemistry in much the same way as we do, but educational systems differ widely. At Bielefeld University, we started a project to analyse the approach to chemical education in different countries from all over the world. Teaching Chemistry around the World: 25 countries have participated in the project. The resulting country studies are presented in this book. This book may be seen as a contribution to make the structure of chemistry teaching in numerous countries more transparent and to facilitate communication between these countries. Especially in the case of the school subject chemistry, which is very unpopular on the one hand and occupies an exceptional position on the other hand due to its relevance to jobs and everyday life, and most notably due to its importance for innovation capacity and problem solving, we have to learn from each other's educational systems.

Stationery Office, Belfast, 1961      Corrosion Technology, 1960      Statewide Exit Exams, Governance, and School Development Esther Dominique Klein, 2013

In the context of outcomes based school governance statewide exit exams are often expected to have a positive effect on student achievements if schools and teachers use the performance feedback from the exams for school instructional and professional development. However, very little is known about whether the exams are used for development at all and how this is affected by factors in the exam system and organizational aspects of schools. In a comparison of Finland, Ireland, and the Netherlands, the study therefore investigates how different exam systems and their functions, the conditions at school level, and the use of the exams for school and classroom development are associated. The study uses expert interviews and a questionnaire survey with principals and teachers. The role statewide exit exams can play in education systems is analyzed from a governance perspective and a school development perspective and discussed with an international comparative view.

Esther Dominique Klein, born in 1982, Dr. phil., is a research assistant at the Faculty of Educational Sciences of the University of Duisburg-Essen. Her main research interests lie in the areas of school system and school development research and international comparative education.
