Delleur,2010-12-12 Due to the increasing demand for adequate water supply caused by the augmenting global population groundwater production has acquired a new importance In many areas surface waters are not available in sufficient quantity or quality Thus an increasing demand for groundwater has resulted However the residence of time of groundwater can be of the order of thousands of years while surface waters is of the order of days Therefore substantially more attention is warranted for transport processes and pollution remediation in groundwater than for surface waters. Similarly, pollution remediation problems in groundwater are generally complex. This excellent, timely resource covers the field of groundwater from an engineering perspective, comprehensively addressing the range of subjects related to subsurface hydrology. It provides a practical treatment of the flow of groundwater, the transport of substances, the construction of wells and well fields, the production of groundwater, and site characterization and remediation of groundwater pollution. No other reference specializes in groundwater engineering to such a broad range of subjects. Its use extends to the engineer designing a well or well field, the engineer designing or operating a landfill facility for municipal or hazardous wastes, the hydrogeologist investigating a contaminant plume, the engineer examining the remediation of a groundwater pollution problem, the engineer or lawyer studying the laws and regulations related to groundwater quality, the scientist analyzing the mechanics of solute transport, the geohydrologist assessing the regional modeling of aquifers, the geophysicist determining the characterization of an aquifer, the cartographer mapping aquifer characteristics, the practitioner planning a monitoring network.
