

Topic 2: Agriculture

There are two structural considerations that you need to incorporate in every of your sub-structure paragraphs. Firstly, always start every paragraph with a topic sentence. Your subject includes agricultural machinery, fertilizers, an agriculturalist's ideal crops, relevant to investment, your selection of investment instruments, post-war agriculturalization, agricultural infrastructure of Britain, agricultural growth, all ways to develop agricultural production to an optimum, approaches to improving agricultural output and efficiency.

There are a few different possibilities to present, but agricultural modernization. One of the challenges of that modern era was to find a way to deal with the fact that the population was growing rapidly, and the demand for food was increasing. The government had to find a way to increase the production of food, and this was done by a number of different methods. One of the most important was the use of fertilizers, which allowed farmers to grow crops more quickly and in larger quantities. Another important method was the use of machinery, which allowed farmers to work the land more efficiently. The government also provided subsidies to farmers, which helped them to cover the costs of production. All of these measures helped to increase the production of food, and this was a major factor in the success of the agricultural revolution.
