Surface Chemistry of Froth Flotation Jan Leja, 2012-12-06 The process of froth flotation is an outstanding example of applied surface chemistry. It is extensively used in the mining, mineral, metallurgical and chemical industries for separation and selective concentration of individual minerals and other solids. Substances so concentrated serve as raw materials for producing appropriate metals and chemicals. The importance of flotation in technology is chiefly due to the ease with which it can be made selective and versatile and to the economy of the process. The objective of this book is to review the fundamentals of surface chemistry together with the relevant aspects of organic and inorganic chemistry that in the opinion of the author are important control of the froth flotation process. The review updates the information that had been available in books by Sutherland and Wark 1955, Gaudin 1957, Klassen and Mokrousov 1963 and Glombotsky et al 1963. It emphasizes mainly the surface chemical aspects of the process, leaving other relevant topics such as hydrodynamics, mechanical and electrical technology, circuit design and engineering operations, research instrumentation, technology, modeling, etc. to appropriate specialized treatments. MALABAR MANUAL by William Logan, Commentary William Logan's Malabar is popularly known as Malabar Manual. It is a huge book of more than 500 000 words. It might not be possible for a casual reader to imbibe all the minute bits of information from this book. However, in this commentary of mine, I have tried to insert a lot of such bits and pieces of information by directly quoting the lines from Malabar. On these quoted lines, I have built up a lot of arguments and also added a lot of explanations and interpretations. I do think that it is much easier to go through my Commentary than to read the whole of William Logan's book Malabar. However, the book Malabar contains much more items than what this Commentary can aspire to contain. This book Malabar will give very detailed information on how a small group of native Englishmen built up a great nation by joining up extremely minute bits of barbarian and semi-barbarian geopolitical areas in the South Asian Subcontinent. Finding Santana Jill Jolliffe, 2010 Tells of Jolliffe's clandestine 1994 journey across the Indonesian archipelago pursued by the Suharto dictatorship's notorious secret police to interview East Timorese guerrilla commander Nino Konis Santana. Part memoir, part adventure story, it is written from the diaries of the journey and interwoven with those of intrepid nineteenth-century traveller Anna Forbes, who also narrowly escaped death in the East Timor mountains. Beginning to Remember Mary S. Zurbuchen, 2015-09-14 Beginning to Remember charts Indonesia's turbulent decades of cultural repression and renewal amid the rise and fall of Suharto's New Order regime. These cross-disciplinary pieces illuminate Indonesia's current efforts to reexamine and understand its past in order to shape new civic and cultural arrangements. In 1998, reformasi brought a wave of relief and euphoria. But Suharto's removal did not dispel persistent corruption, official secrecy and denial, religious and ethnic violence and security policies leading to tragedy in East Timor, Aceh and other regions. But the reformasi did open up new possibilities for seeing the past. What followed was a surge of discourse that challenged officially codified national history in mass media and publishing, in public policy debate, in the arts.

and in popular mobilization and politics This volume is an exploration of some of the expressions narratives and interpretations of the past found in Indonesia today The authors illustrate ways in which the dissolution of the Indonesian state s monopoly on history is now permitting new national local and individual accounts and representations of the past to emerge The book covers fields from performing arts and literature to anthropology history and transitional justice The book opens with Goenawan Mohamad s dramatic poem Kali the first publication of this important work by one of Indonesia s leading intellectuals which has become the libretto for an international opera production Another chapter is a personal memoir by one of Java s famous shadow play masters Tristuti Rachmadi for years imprisoned under the New Order Leading historian Anthony Reid commemorates the national struggle at the regional level while South African lawyer Paul van Zyl compares efforts in transitional justice in Indonesia East Timor and South Africa

Raiding, Trading, and Feasting Laura L. Junker,1999-09-01 As early as the first millennium A D the Philippine archipelago formed the easternmost edge of a vast network of Chinese Southeast Asian Indian and Arab traders Items procured through maritime trade became key symbols of social prestige and political power for the Philippine chiefly elite Raiding Trading and Feasting presents the first comprehensive analysis of how participation in this trade related to broader changes in the political economy of these Philippine island societies By combining archaeological evidence with historical sources Laura Junker is able to offer a more nuanced examination of the nature and evolution of Philippine maritime trading chiefdoms Most importantly she demonstrates that it is the dynamic interplay between investment in the maritime luxury goods trade and other evolving aspects of local political economies rather than foreign contacts that led to the cyclical coalescence of larger and more complex chiefdoms at various times in Philippine history A broad spectrum of historical and ethnographic sources ranging from tenth century Chinese tributary trade records to turn of the century accounts of chiefly feasts of merit highlights both the diversity and commonality in evolving chiefly economic strategies within the larger political landscape of the archipelago The political ascendance of individual polities the emergence of more complex forms of social ranking and long term changes in chiefly economies are materially documented through a synthesis of archaeological research at sites dating from the Metal Age late first millennium B C to the colonial period The author draws on her archaeological fieldwork in the Tanjay River basin to investigate the long term dynamics of chiefly political economy in a single region Reaching beyond the Philippine archipelago this study contributes to the larger anthropological debate concerning ecological and cultural factors that shape political economy in chiefdoms and early states It attempts to address the question of why Philippine polities like early historic kingdoms elsewhere in Southeast Asia have a segmentary political structure in which political leaders are dependent on prestige goods exchanges personal charisma and ritual pageantry to maintain highly personalized power bases Raiding Trading and Feasting is a volume of impressive scholarship and substantial scope unmatched in the anthropological and historical literature It will be welcomed by Pacific and Asian historians and anthropologists and those interested in the theoretical issues of chiefdoms The Andhra Pradesh Journal of Archaeology ,1979 The Engineer ,1898 The Church Missionary Intelligencer Anonymous,2023-05-06 Reprint of the original first published in 1872 The publishing house Anatiposi publishes historical books as reprints Due to their age these books may have missing pages or inferior quality Our aim is to preserve these books and make them available to the public so that they do not get lost
