Reading the Odyssey Jonas Grethlein, 2024-11-12 This book serves as both a cultural and reception history of Homer's great epic the Odyssey and as an in-depth exploration of the literary styles that mark the narrative out as so unique and influential It begins with a broad survey of the Odyssey's presence in intellectual history as well as in the arts today in literature art and film and goes on to familiarise the reader with the literary form of Homeric epic and all of its peculiarities before focusing in on the book's central thread the narrative The Odyssey is not only a gripping story in its own right it also features several stories within it the recitals of the bards the homecoming stories of the Greek heroes after the fall of Troy Odysseus' own report of his adventures and the falsified stories through which he conceals his identity Narrative presents itself as a principal theme for a comprehensive reading of the poem and at the same time speaks powerfully to issues of identity meaning and experience in today's society We all use narratives to make sense of our lives to form identities and to forge communities and Grethlein shows us how Homer mastered the true art of storytelling Across eight chapters he takes the reader on a tour of the poem exemplifying the ways in which it reflects with great nuance on the various forms and functions of narrative He highlights in particular its capacity to help individuals understand their experiences and themselves to overcome contingency and to bestow meaning on events in retrospect Grethlein demonstrates artfully the ways in which the Odyssey has provided us with one of the most influential narrative schemas on which we rely and emphasises the continuing relevance of the poem to modern readers and the modern world

ATAR Notes Text Guide: The Penelopiad ,2019-06 Unruly Penelopes and the Ghosts Eva

Darias-Beautell,2012-08-06 This collection of essays studies the cultural and literary contexts of narrative texts produced in English Canada over the last forty years It takes as its starting point the nationalist movement of the 1960s and 70s when the supposed absence or weakness of a national sense became the touchstone for official discourses on the cultural identity of the country That type of metaphor provided the nation with the distinctive elements it was looking for and contributed to the creation of a sense of tradition that has survived to the present In the decades following the 1970s however critics artists and writers have repeatedly questioned such a model of national identity still fragile and in need of articulation by reading the nation from alternative perspectives such as multiculturalism environmentalism neo regionalism feminism or postcolonialism These contributors suggest that the artistic and cultural flowering Canada is experiencing at the beginning of the twenty first century is to a great extent based on the dismantlement of the images constructed to represent the nation only forty years ago Through their readings of representative primary texts their contextual analysis and their selected methodological tools the authors offer a tapestry of alternative approaches to that process of dismantlement Together they read as an unruly Penelopiad their unravelling readings self consciously interrogating Canada s lack of ghosts Book Review Index ,2006

Escaping from the Prison-House of Language and Digging for Meanings in Texts among Texts: Metafiction and Intertextuality in Margaret Atwood's Novels Lady Oracle and The Blind Assassin Andrea Strolz, 2012-02-13 Margaret Atwood's novels are photographs of her characters' lives while words only ever describe her protagonists' blurred visions of their pasts; their true stories are told in subtexts which run parallel or even contrary to the main story line and which depict the unseen, the buried, the untrue. Replete with intertextual references, her fiction illuminates that and why what isn't there has a presence like the absence of light. The Blind Assassin She plays with our conventional modes of perception to make us aware of the way we frame reality in our minds. Andrea Strolz discusses in her book the interrelation between metafictional and intertextual features in two of Atwood's novels that share many similarities even though written in different decades. She examines how Atwood weaves intertextual references into her fiction, how she facilitates a reader's recognition of the intertexts, and she shows that Atwood's narrator/protagonists also reflect on our age as one of intertextuality.

Postmodernism and After Regina Rudaitytė, 2009-05-05 The present collection of academic articles is an attempt to reflect on new openings and recent developments in literature, literary theory, and culture which seem to point beyond postmodernism and register a return to traditional concepts, theoretical premises, and authorial practices. Interestingly enough, forty years after the publication of John Barth's seminal essay The Literature of Exhaustion (1967), the book is trying to diagnose the exhaustion of postmodernism which was predicted by David Lodge already two decades ago. It also attempts to trace the signs in contemporary literature indicating that postmodernism is past its heyday, that it is losing or has lost its shine, fascination, and attraction, and that writers have been turning to the old or pre-modern forms, practices, and strategies. Herbert Grabes' comprehensive and illuminating article From the Postmodern to the Pre-Modern: More Recent Changes in Literature, Art, and Theory which opens and sets the tone for this collection of essays is a major assessment of new developments in literary culture focusing on the evolution of the postmodern to the premodern mode; it also highlights the role and current popularity of cultural studies and cultural history, theoretical movements which have been prevailing for some time now after the end of deconstruction. The articles assembled in this collection are on diverse thematics and written from diverse theoretical perspectives; they differ in scope and methodology, and their focus ranges from the postmodern intertextual aspect to the open questioning of it and to more recent developments in the literary culture. Focusing on literary icons like A.S. Byatt, John Banville, Margaret Atwood, Umberto Eco, Vladimir Nabokov, but also extending into less known regions geographically as well, they invite reconsideration and reconceptualization of such key notions as truth, meaning, production, textuality, and literary interpretation. This book aims at opening fresh discussion, debate, and reflection on the new age reaching beyond postmodernism and the budding literary mode, whatever labels we might stick to it.
