Carbon dioxide removal: Perspectives from the social sciences and humanities Anders Hansson,Mathias Fridahl,Miranda Boettcher,Shinichiro Asayama,2024-07-09 Carbon dioxide removal CDR approaches are becoming increasingly central to visions of decarbonizing national economies The past few years have seen an increasing number of countries committed to net zero targets preceded by a surge of modelled 1.5 °C scenarios envisioning large scale future CDR deployment The prospect of CDR deployment raises new complex socio ecological challenges and presents new deep uncertainties These complexities challenges and uncertainties cannot be investigated using solely the techno economic modelling and environmental risk assessment methods that currently dominate the construction of policy relevant knowledge on CDR Social sciences and the humanities perspectives on CDR are often restricted to instrumental tasks such as investigating public acceptance overcoming social resistance or supporting the development of integrated assessment models There is a need for more diverse investigations of CDR which include not only environmental and techno economic dimensions but also explore key societal complexities challenges and uncertainties Against this backdrop we call for submissions on CDR stemming from perspectives within the social sciences and humanities We encourage novel empirical and theoretical contributions on CDR related policy design or analyses of recent policy developments at sub national national and international levels of governance e g in context of climate targets and strategies climate tipping points mitigation deterrence or societal transformations

The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology
Gerben Bruinsma,Shane D. Johnson,2018 The study of how the environment local geography and physical locations influence crime has a long history that stretches across many research traditions These include the neighborhood effects approach developed in the 1920s the criminology of place and a newer approach that attends to the perception of crime in communities Aided by new technologies and improved data reporting in recent decades research in environmental criminology has developed rapidly within each of these approaches Yet research in the subfield remains fragmented and competing theories are rarely examined together The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology takes a unique approach and synthesizes the contributions of existing methods to better integrate the subfield as a whole Gerben J N Bruinsma and Shane D Johnson have assembled a cast of top scholars to provide an in depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime affect the environment and impact individual or group behavior The contributors address how changes in the environment global connectivity and technology provide more criminal opportunities and new ways of committing old crimes They also explore how crimes committed in countries with distinct cultural practices like China and West Africa might lead to different spatial patterns of crime This is a state of the art compendium on environmental criminology that reflects the diverse research and theory developed across the western world
