Abstract

Odontogenic cysts are common jaw cysts of different etiologies and treatments. In our project we presented two case reports. The first is a radicular cyst with inflammatory etiology and a follicular cyst from developmental etiology. Our first patient was presented with a unilocular radiolucency cystic formation in a non-vital tooth (35), in the mandibular premolar region, which was suggestive of a radicular cyst. The second patient was presented with a radiolucent lesion associated with an unerupted mandibular third molar (48) that was diagnosed as a follicular cyst. These two lesions both showed buccal cortical expansion but none of them had signs of acute inflammation or any neurological symptoms. Enucleation surgical procedure was performed under local anesthesia in both cases, with mucoperiosteal flap elevation and also osteotomy. Excision of the cyst was made by Partsch II surgical method, which included enucleation, curettage and also irrigation of the bony cavity. Postoperatively were administered antibiotic therapy and antistreptolysin prophylaxis. After one week was made follow-up which revealed uneventful healing in both our cases, with no signs of any complication or recurrence. These cases emphasize the role of proper diagnosis on the basis of clinical and also radiographic examination. Even these cysts are radiographically similar, radicular and follicular cysts differ in etiology, pathogenesis and dental findings. The surgical method that we used - Partsch II was successful for both lesions. Also it is very important treatment in the early stages for better outcomes and to avoid recurrence of the cystic formations.

1. Introduction

Odontogenic cysts are benign formations, whose origin is from epithelial remnants of tooth development. These are inflammatory or developmental cysts that represent a vast majority of oral pathology that clinicians encounter. Radicular cysts and follicular cysts (which are frequently referred to as dentigerous cysts) are some of the most prevalent odontogenic cysts being diagnosed (Borghesi et al., 2018). These two cysts, although both are radiographically similar, possess distinct underlying etiologies, clinical features, and treatment approaches and hence a definitive diagnostic procedure is necessary to implement proper treatment depending on histopathological findings.

Radicular cysts are most linked with the apex of non-vital teeth and are presented as a result of chronic inflammation process. From our review with simple cases as ours, it is thought that the proliferation of the epithelial rests of Malassez, remnants of Hertwig's epithelial root sheath, can lead to the development of these odontogenic cysts. The most common odontogenic cysts are radicular cysts and they typically occur in the adults, most commonly in the second and third period of life (Gurav et al., 2024). From radiographical perspective, they can appear as well-circumscribed and unilocular radiolucencies mostly at the root apex of the non-vital teeth with the size being related proportional to the duration of chronic inflammation process (Chen et al., 2018). From the clinical perspective, the patients are mostly asymptomatic or may have mild edema and pain.
