The SAGE Handbook of Quantitative Methods in Psychology Roger E Millsap, Alberto Maydeu-Olivares, 2009-08-05 I often wonder to myself whether the field needs another book handbook or encyclopedia on this topic In this case I think that the answer is truly yes The handbook is well focused on important issues in the field and the chapters are written by recognized authorities in their fields The book should appeal to anyone who wants an understanding of important topics that frequently go uncovered in graduate education in psychology David C Howell Professor Emeritus University of Vermont Quantitative psychology is arguably one of the oldest disciplines within the field of psychology and nearly all psychologists are exposed to quantitative psychology in some form While textbooks in statistics research methods and psychological measurement exist none offer a unified treatment of quantitative psychology The SAGE Handbook of Quantitative Methods in Psychology does just that Each chapter covers a methodological topic with equal attention paid to established theory and the challenges facing methodologists as they address new research questions using that particular methodology The reader will come away from each chapter with a greater understanding of the methodology being addressed as well as an understanding of the directions for future developments within that methodological area Drawing on a global scholarship the Handbook is divided into seven parts Part One Design and Inference addresses issues in the inference of causal relations from experimental and non experimental research along with the design of true experiments and quasi experiments and the problem of missing data due to various influences such as attrition or non compliance Part Two Measurement Theory begins with a chapter on classical test theory followed by the common factor analysis model as a model for psychological measurement The models for continuous latent variables in item response theory are covered next followed by a chapter on discrete latent variable models as represented in latent class analysis Part Three Scaling Methods covers metric and non metric scaling methods as developed in multidimensional scaling followed by consideration of the scaling of discrete measures as found in dual scaling and correspondence analysis Models for preference data such as those found in random utility theory are covered next Part Four Data Analysis includes chapters on regression models categorical data analysis multilevel or hierarchical models resampling methods robust data analysis meta analysis Bayesian data analysis and cluster analysis Part Five Structural Equation Models addresses topics in general structural equation modeling nonlinear structural equation models mixture models and multilevel structural equation models Part Six Longitudinal Models covers the analysis of longitudinal data via mixed modeling time series analysis and event history analysis Part Seven Specialized Models covers specific topics including the analysis of neuro imaging data and functional data analysis Resources in Education ,2001-04 Research Methods for Psychological Science William J. Ray,2021-08-05 Written by experimental research expert Dr William J Ray Research Methods for Psychological Science introduces students to the principles and practice of conducting research in psychology in an engaging story telling format Ray helps students understand how research increases our understanding of ourselves and our environment and how logic and best practices can increase our understanding of human behavior Whether their future roles will be researchers consumers of research or informed citizens students will learn the importance of developing testable hypotheses how to evaluate new information critically and the impact of research on ourselves and our society Based on Ray s influential textbook Methods Toward a Science of Behavior and Experience the book offers up to date pedagogy structure and exercises to reinforce the student s learning experience

National Library of Medicine Audiovisuals Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), Program Evaluation for Social Workers Richard M. Grinnell,Peter Gabor (Sociologist),Yvonne A. Unrau,2016 First published in 1994 this text is designed to be used by graduate level social work students in courses on evaluation and program design Over the course of 20 years and 6 editions the goals of the book have remained the same to prepare students to participate in evaluative activities within their organizations to prepare students to become critical producers and consumers of professional evaluative literature and to prepare students for more advanced evaluation courses and texts Grinnell Gabor and Unrau aim to meet these objectives by presenting a unique approach that is realistic practical applied and user friendly While a majority of textbooks focus on program level evaluation some recent books present case level evaluation methods but rely on inferentially powerful but difficult to implement experimental baseline designs This text assumes that neither of these approaches adequately reflects the realities of the field or the needs of students and beginning practitioners Instead Program Evaluation for Social Workers offers a blend of the two that demonstrates how they can complement one another The integration of case level and program level approaches provides an accessible adaptable and realistic framework for students to more easily grasp and implement in the real world Contemporary's GED Test 2 Karen Gibbons,1994 Targeted instruction and practice in the skills required to pass the GED social studies test Reading Like a Historian Avishag Reisman, 2011 Enthusiasm about the instructional potential of primary sources dates to the late 19th century and has been echoed recently in the work of literacy experts, historians, and educational psychologists. Yet no extended intervention study has been undertaken to test the effectiveness of primary source instruction in real history classrooms. This study with 236 eleventh grade students in five San Francisco high schools represented the first large scale extended curriculum intervention in disciplinary reading in an urban district. The Reading Like a Historian (RLH) curriculum constituted a radical departure from traditional textbook driven instruction by using a new activity structure, the Document Based Lesson, in which students used background knowledge and disciplinary reading strategies to interrogate and then reconcile historical accounts from multiple texts. A quasi-experiment control design measured the effects of a six month intervention on four dimensions: 1 students' historical thinking, 2 their ability to transfer historical thinking strategies to contemporary issues, 3 their mastery of factual knowledge, and 4 their growth in general reading comprehension. MANCOVA analysis yielded significant main effects for the treatment condition on all four outcome measures. Qualitative analyses of videotaped classroom lessons were conducted to determine the frequency and nature of whole class text based discussion. Only nine whole class text based discussions were identified in over 100 videotaped classroom lessons despite the presence of instructional materials explicitly designed to support student discussion of debatable historical questions. Analysis of teacher and student participation suggests a relationship between active teacher facilitation that reviews background knowledge and poses direct questions about texts and higher levels of student argumentation. This dissertation is structured as three free standing papers, each of which addresses one aspect of the larger study. In the first paper I discuss the design of the quasi-experimental study and report quantitative findings. In the second paper I locate teacher facilitation of whole class historical discussion in the literature on classroom discourse and I propose a developmental framework for analyzing student historical argumentation in classroom discussion. In the third and final paper I discuss the theoretical underpinnings of the intervention curriculum and offer two examples to illustrate the structure of the Document Based Lesson.

The SAGE Encyclopedia of Research Design
Bruce B. Frey, 2022-01-27 The SAGE Encyclopedia of Research Design maps out how one makes decisions about research design, interprets data, and draws valid inferences; undertakes research projects in an ethical manner; and evaluates experimental design strategies and results. From A to Z, this four volume work covers the spectrum of research design strategies and topics, including among other things: fundamental research design principles, ethics in the research process, quantitative versus qualitative and mixed method designs, completely randomized designs, multiple comparison tests, diagnosing agreement between data and models, fundamental assumptions in analysis of variance, factorial treatment designs, complete and incomplete block designs, Latin square and related designs, hierarchical designs, response surface designs, split plot designs, repeated measures designs, crossover designs, analysis of covariance, statistical software packages, and much more Research design with its statistical underpinnings can be especially daunting for students and novice researchers At its heart research design might be described simply as a formalized approach toward problem solving thinking and acquiring knowledge the success of which depends upon clearly defined objectives and appropriate choice of statistical design and analysis to meet those objectives The SAGE Encyclopedia of Research Design will assist students and researchers with their work while providing vital information on research strategies
