Cohen, K. Lambert, R. E,2013-03-12 The idea for this book came while I was observing a student teacher and a master teacher I realized that most student teachers while in training do not have the opportunity to think creatively about their lessons I also noticed that teachers new to the field of teaching suffer the same fate they are too busy trying to survive the day and are not sure how to plan and organize their teaching Lesson plans are one of the most important tools for a teacher and more important for the novice teacher I believe that during student teaching or during their undergraduate years if students were equipped with this book their first year teaching will not look so first year Imagine an undergraduate class filled with soon to be Social Studies teachers discussing these selected lesson plans improving upon them and making them their own Most first year teachers over teach or under teach and both types still miss the marks on the standardized test These lesson plans will give the new teacher a place to begin Connecting the Dots in World History, A Teacher's Literacy Based Curriculum Chris Edwards,2015-12-04 In his previously written articles and books Chris Edwards has argued that Teaching should be considered a field that is separate from both the field of Education and from the content area fields Teaching is a field which synthesizes content and method for classroom application All of the other major intellectual fields have a canon of works which practitioners can learn from and add to but Teaching does not The Connecting the Dots in World History A Teacher's Literacy Based Curriculum series changes this by showing how effective a teacher generated curriculum can be These books can inspire other teachers to create their own curriculums and inspire a change in the way that the public views teachers and teaching
