It focuses on the applications, functions, and principles of medical devices, which are the invariant components and uses specific designs and constructions to illustrate the concepts where appropriate. Indication of use as well as common problems and hazards for each device type are included. This book selectively covers diagnostic and therapeutic devices that are either commonly used or whose principles and design represent typical applications of the technology. For those who would like to know more, a collection of published papers and book references has been added to the end of each chapter. In this third edition, many chapters have gone through revisions, some with significant updates and additions to keep up with new applications and advancements in medical technology. A new appendix on infection prevention and control practices relating to medical devices is included. Based on requests, review questions are added for each chapter to help readers to assess their comprehension of the content material.

Combining and integrating cross institutional data remains a challenge for both researchers and those involved in patient care. Patient generated data can contribute precious information to healthcare professionals by enabling monitoring under normal life conditions and also helping patients play a more active role in their own care. This book presents the proceedings of MEDINFO 2019 the 17th World Congress on Medical and Health Informatics held in Lyon France from 25 to 30 August 2019. The theme of this year's conference was Health and Wellbeing e-Networks for All, stressing the increasing importance of networks in healthcare on the one hand and the patient centered perspective on the other. Over 1100 manuscripts were submitted to the conference and after a thorough review process by at least three reviewers and assessment by a scientific program committee member 285 papers and 296 posters were accepted together with 47 podium abstracts, 7 demonstrations, 45 panels, 21 workshops and 9 tutorials. All accepted paper and poster contributions are included in these proceedings. The papers are grouped under four thematic tracks: interpreting health and biomedical data supporting care delivery; enabling precision medicine and public health; and the human element in medical informatics. The posters are divided into the same four groups. The book presents an overview of state of the art informatics projects from multiple regions of the world; it will be of interest to anyone working in the field of medical informatics. Cardiovascular, respiratory and related conditions cause more than 40 percent of all deaths globally and their substantial burden is rising particularly in low and middle income countries (LMICs). Their burden extends well beyond health effects to include significant economic and societal consequences. Most of these conditions are related, share risk factors and have common control measures at the clinical population and policy levels. Lives can be extended and improved when these diseases are prevented, detected and managed. This volume summarizes current knowledge and presents evidence based interventions that are effective, cost effective and scalable in LMICs.
