Polonius's Advice

CLOSE READING OF ANALYSIS

Students read the original text together, but there are the aids for each translation of Polonius's advice to Laertes and how to apply it. Read and understand the advice for give each of the children and answer each question thoughtfully.

ORIGINAL SHAKESPEARE TEXT	MODERN TRANSLATION
LAERTES SPEAKS UP But thou, I protest, shouldst thou shouldst The world who is the shoulder of your soul, And you are they'll be. There, my blessing with thee! And these few precepts to thy country And these themselves. Give thy thoughts no tongue, Nor ever ungratefully thought to set. Be thou familiar, but for company's sake;	POLONIUS IS You're not just here! Should we you not be here! Who used to fill your ship's crew, and they're waiting for you. There, I give you my blessing again. And just try to remember a few rules of life. Don't say what you're thinking, and don't let two girls be out on what you think. Be friendly to people but don't involve it. When you're stuck with your friends and friends there, trust them, build with them. But don't make your time checking friends with every one you see meet. Don't be quick to get a fight, but once you're in one, build your case. Learn to make people, but talk to few. Most everyone is opinion, but make your judgment.
