

What Factors Affect My Broadband Speed?

1. Type Of Activity

Different online activities consume varying amounts of bandwidth. Video streaming, online gaming, and large file downloads typically use more data and can slow down your connection.

2. Number Of Connected Devices

The more devices connected to your network, the more bandwidth is being shared, which can result in slower speeds.

3. Network Congestion

During peak usage times, such as evenings and weekends, more people are using the internet, which can lead to congestion and slower speeds.

4. Distance Of Router

If your router is located far away from your devices, you'll get a lower signal strength unless it's connected via ethernet (wired connection).
