

Unit 1 - Small Moments
Pre-Assessment

Teaching Point:	I can write a small moment story across pages.
CCSS:	W.1.3.W.1.1.W.1.2.W.1.4
Materials:	Blank booklets/differentiated writing paper for students, pencils, conference notes
Connection:	Introduce the writing workshop by telling children that every day they'll gather for a mini-lesson and write books like those on the surrounding shelves. Explain that for the first unit of study, the students are going to write a lot of true stories about small moments in their lives.
Teach:	Explain to students that when they go back and write today, they are going to write a story about something that has happened to them. It must be a true story about something that has happened in their lives. Let students know that they are going to write this story independently. That means they are going to try to write their story completely on their own.
Active Engagement:	Think-Pair-Share: What are you going to write your story about? Turn and tell your partner.
Link:	Send students off to write their small moment story across the pages of their booklets. Because this is a pre-assessment, writing should be done independently without teacher guidance.
Mid-workshop Intervention:	If you are not sure how to spell something or how to draw something, don't give up! Just try your best and keep going. You can do it!
Differentiation:	Students are arranged on rug in designated spots to lessen distractions from friends. Students that are unable to keep focus while on the rug will be given directions individually. While at the tables, students will work independently, however they can ask their neighbors for help on letter sounds or look at the word wall. Teachers will circulate to prompt those students that have trouble starting or staying on task. Alphabet strips and letter charts are visible for assistance. Students can use paper with multiple lines and a picture box, or picture box with 1-2 lines.
Share:	Praise students for the hard work they did during writer's workshop.
Assess:	Informal observation, think-pair-share, small moment booklets

Narrative and Experience in Multicultural Education JoAnn Phillion, Ming Fang He, F. Michael Connelly, 2005-03-23 Narrative and Experience in Multicultural Education provides compelling stories that raise questions advance understandings and promote insight into the challenges and hopes of teaching for diversity and democracy The works contained are compelling for the stories they tell and as such there is value in their presence That the thoughtful reader can glean important lessons with respect to multicultural education and the value of narrative inquiry as academic disciplines is intellectual icing on the cake Francisco Rios University of Wyoming This work is a very exciting important and badly needed piece of scholarship offered by some of the most leading edge professors in the field The diversity and diverse viewpoints it presents are unparalleled in the field of education Cheryl J Craig University of Houston

The narratives in this book allow readers to put a human face to an issue related to multicultural education. A reflective reader will begin to see himself/herself in the narratives of the text. Edmundo F. Litton, Loyola Marymount University. The inclusion of chapters that deal with classroom realities elevates the text for education teacher candidates above those existing volumes that tend to deal with multi-cultural issues in the abstract. One of the strengths of this volume is that it will resonate with new and experienced classroom practitioners. Jon G. Bradley, McGill University. Narrative and Experience in Multicultural Education explores the untapped potential that narrative and experiential approaches have for understanding multicultural issues in education. The research featured in the book reflects an exciting new way of thinking about human experience. The studies focus on the lives of students, teachers, parents, and communities, highlighting experiences seldom discussed in the literature. The authors are diverse, and their inquiries are far-ranging in terms of content, ethnic groups, and geographic locations. They also bring their personal experience to the inquiries, actively participate in the lives of the people with whom they work, care deeply about the concerns of their participants, and search for ways to act upon these concerns. Most importantly, the work emphasizes the understanding of experience and transforming this understanding into social and educational significance. Key Features: Addresses new ways to explore multicultural issues in education rather than relying on theoretical generalizations; the book focuses explicitly on individual and group experiences; Emphasizes the transformation of experience into education, especially through the study of complex multicultural issues; Challenges readers' assumptions of multicultural issues by offering numerous narrative accounts and research studies for work with various ethnic groups. Narrative and Experience in Multicultural Education is designed for use in courses in multicultural education and qualitative research, especially in departments of education, anthropology, and sociology. Professional educators, researchers, and consultants will also find this a valuable introduction to narrative research and a welcome addition to the literature.

Instructional Models in Physical Education Michael Metzler, 2017-06-30. Ensures that physical educators are fully armed with a comprehensive plan for incorporating instructional models in their teaching. Instructional Models for Physical Education has two primary goals for its readers. The first is to familiarize them with the notion of model-based instruction for physical education, including the components and dimensions that determine a model's pattern of teaching and how to select the most effective model for student learning in a particular unit. The second goal is to describe each of the instructional models in such a way to give readers enough information to use any of the models with confidence and good results. The book includes everything readers will need for planning, implementing, and assessing when teaching with instructional models. It will help readers incorporate research-based practices in their lessons, adapt activities to include students of varying abilities, and teach to standards. Models tied to NASPE standards. The author has revised the third edition to show how using the instructional models can help teachers meet specific NASPE standards. The book demonstrates the connection of NASPE standards with the models and clarifies that connection for students. In addition, a table in each of the model chapters shows explicitly how the model aligns with NASPE standards Level Up Your Lesson Plans Teresa K.
