Implement & Tractor Red Book ,1969 Report of the Regional Workshop on the Effects of Globalization and Deregulation on Fisheries in the Caribbean, Castries, Saint Lucia, 4-8 December 2000 Tietze, U., (ed.),2001-01-01 This report contains a record of the proceedings and recommendations of the workshop It was attended by twenty one participants from ten Caribbean countries as well as FAO officers Possible positive impacts of globalization identified at the workshop include improved access to overseas markets increase in intraregional trade access to technological improvements increased demand for fish products through further development of tourism increase in the contribution of the fisheries sector to foreign currency earnings and to gross domestic product Possible negative impacts were foreseen in terms of higher prices of exportable fish products in domestic markets increased pressure on fully or overexploited fish stocks erosion of decision making at various levels in the absence of adequate reforms in governance difficulties on the part of small countries in meeting scales of production needed to compete in a global environment The main outcome of the workshop is the formulation of a Caribbean Fisheries Agenda on Globalization CFAG which is aimed to aid Caribbean countries prepare for the challenges of globalization

Review of Recreational Fisheries Survey Methods National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies,Ocean Studies Board,Committee on the Review of Recreational Fisheries Survey Methods,2006-08-13 Recreational fishing in the United States is an important social and economic component of many marine fisheries with an estimated 14 million anglers making almost 82 million fishing trips in 2004 Although each individual angler typically harvests a small number of fish collectively these sport fisheries can take a significant fraction of the yearly catch in some cases more than commercial fisheries For example in 1999 recreational fishing accounted for 94% of the total catch of spotted sea trout 76% of striped bass and sheephead and 60 percent of king mackerel It is important that systems used to monitor fishing catch are adequate for timely management of recreational fisheries However the large number of anglers and access points makes monitoring recreational fishing much more difficult than monitoring commercial fishing This report reviews the types of survey methods used to estimate catch in recreational fisheries including state federal cooperative programs The report finds that both telephone survey and onsite access components of the current monitoring systems have serious flaws in design or implementation There are also several areas of miscommunication and mismatched criteria among designers of surveys data collectors and recreational fisheries The report recommends that a comprehensive universal sampling frame with national coverage should be established and that improvements should be made in statistical analysis of the data collected and in the ways the data are communicated A permanent and independent research group should be established and funded to evaluate the statistical design and adequacy of recreational fishery surveys and to guide necessary modifications or new initiatives Directions ,1979 New
